How to Trap Lynxes
No Intelligence Test
World Smash in 1928
Good in the End

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1927, by Star Co.

HODGE, CALIF., Dec. 30.—Here on the Mojave Desert, the important news is that you can trap anything, if you take the advice of John A. Little of San Simeon, on the coast north of here. Mr. Little, champion trapper, says: "Don't use bait, it makes the animal suspicious, and don't set your traps under bushes, for the same reason. Set them, well covered, on a smooth, open trail, and put little sticks on either side of the trap, front and back. The hunted animal, fearing to make a noise, steps over the sticks and into the trap."

Following that advice, Robert Hodge and his young partner, Seward S. Brisbane, have trapped this week six lynxes, almost as big as police dogs, and one fox. No lynx had been trapped here for two years. This is important news for chickens, turkeys and jack rabbits.

Dr. H. W. Johnson, of the Mellon Institute, says "intelligence tests" are only "pseudo-scientific." No test can tell what is in a human brain. No test could have told much about a small, shy, morose boy, "never seen to smile," in the French School of Brienne and named Napoleon Bonaparte. No test could have predicted that the overeating, hard-drinking, stoutish man that retired to work in Switzerland, would write Gibbon's history of the Roman Empire's rise and fall.

Dr. Moss of George Washington University says there are three kinds of intelligence, "abstract" intelligence, which creates scientists; "social" intelligence, which makes able politicians and salesmen, and "mechanical" intelligence, which produces such men as Henry Ford. There are several other kinds of intelligence wrapped up in Henry Ford, but that is another story.

Nothing explains genius. Man's brain is a receiving station, which records messages from out-

"Reveille" to Usher in New Year From White House Roof

Washington, Dec. 31 (A.P.)—Following a custom established last year, 1928 will be welcomed from the roof top of the White House tonight by the blaring of trumpets.

A few minutes before midnight Arthur S. Whitcomb, of the Marine Band, will sound "taps" and when the clock has traveled past twelve he will swing into reveille.

A bugle band quartet will take its place then on the White House roof under a flood of searchlights and will play "Your Land and My Land," to be followed by a chimes obligato playing "The Bells of St. Mary's."

President and Mrs. Coolidge and their son, John, are expected to take part in the celebration, to which the public has been invited.

HUB WELCOME TO 1928 MUST BE IN WHISPER; POLICE BAN ALL NOISE

Boston will extend a very dry and a very silent greeting to the New Year at 12 o'clock tonight.

Special duty police, numbering 1,500, will be detailed to patrol Boston streets between midnight and 2 a. m. Sunday and if you blow a horn or toodle a whistle or jangle a cow bell it is quite possible you will greet the New Year down from the jug that is neither little nor brown.

The police department, in full accord with Mayor Nichols' wishes, has made known its own plans to greet the New Year greeters.

IT'S ALL OFF AT 12.

Three-quarters of Boston's force of lawmakers have orders to use the iron hand with those wont to welcome in boisterous and effusive manner the advent of the new year.

The police ultimatum is "Anybody under the influence of liquor will be arrested." Shouting, singing and dancing is taboo after the clock has struck midnight.

A special communication from Police Commissioner Herbert A. Wilson to Superintendent Michael H. Crowley contained instructions for all division captains to detail men to the hotels, cafes and restaurants to focus eagle eyes upon "bottles with glasses with cracked ice with ginger ale."

POLICE KEEP TABS.

Names of witnesses must be obtained and arrest and prosecution

COLD WAVE COMING

Cold and possibly snow is the prediction of the weather forecaster for the New Year week-end.

A cold wave is on its way from the midwest, where temperatures have tumbled to the zero mark.

A threat of snow is seen in the junction of this wave and the storm area now hovering over the Atlantic seaboard, but the Hub will escape a snowfall if the storm area moves out to sea ahead of the approaching cold.

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 31 (A.P.)—The old year smote a far-flung area of the country today with the most severe cold wave of the Winter. From Canada to the Gulf of Mexico came reports of Winter's frontal assault, with sub-zero temperatures in the north and central sections and below freezing into the lower Rio Grande valley of Texas. Three deaths were attributed to the storm in Chicago and one in Montana.

N. Y. Marriages Decrease

New York, Dec. 31 (A.P.)—Cupid's business here fell off in 1927, it was revealed when the Marriage License Bureau closed today. Licenses totaled 86,326, or 798 less than last year.

PLANS HICKMAN PLEA OF GUILTY, FOR MERCY

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 31 (I.N.S.).—"I'll probably have William Edward Hickman plead guilty to murder—as was done in the Leopold-Loeb murder trial—and throw him on the mercy of the court," said Jerome Walsh of Kansas City, attorney for Hickman, today.

This disposed of a report that insanity would be Hickman's defense, in the kidnaping and murder of twelve-year-old Marion Parker.

Hickman today branded as a hoax the purported confession of James Ellsworth, held in Detroit, Mich., that he was a bandit accomplice of Hickman and Welby Hunt.

"That guy's trying to butt in," said the kidnaper slayer. "He never worked with us. We never heard of him."

Hickman's statement came while he was being questioned by Frank Dewar, county jailer, and was borne out later by a dispatch from Detroit saying the Ellsworth confession was false.

At the same time Dewar disclosed the contents of an anonymous letter which had just been received from Detroit, addressed to Hickman. This letter read as follows:

"William Edward Hickman: If

MEXICANS MAY FREE BOSTON MAN'S SLAYER

The scales of Mexican justice which weigh so lightly American lives and property have struck a strange balance in the case of Arthur H. Brewer, former Boston resident and famous football captain who was murdered in Guadalajara seven months ago.

So strange a balance, in fact, that Javier Diaz, arrested for the crime only after five vigorous notes had been sent by the State Department in Washington to the Foreign Office, may never be brought to trial.

And if the trial eventually is held it will be just another of "those

CASH VOTED TO STADIUM

Despite a one-man attempted filibuster, the Boston Evening American project, the Schoolboy Stadium in the Fenway, was assured today when the City Council voted 12 to 3 to appropriate $56,644.62 from the income of the Parkman Fund to be used for this purpose.

Retiring City Councillor Horace Guild talked against the bill for 45 minutes, but in a rollcall vote, during which several members walked out of the Council Chamber, the order was approved.

It was the last official act of the present council, six of whose members were defeated at the last election, and as the body was due at the Lenox at 1 o'clock as guests

Ties Himself to Door; Gets His Plates First

"BILL" PARSONS

Bill Parsons got his 1928 automobile registration plates today.

His right foot had gone to sleep and his right arm was numb but he was first in the line at the registry of motor vehicles opposite the Commonwealth avenue armory.

When a group of men numbering about 100 arrived on the scene shortly before daybreak today William, clad in overalls, was found reclining against the office door.

"Shove along," suggested a surly individual to Bill. "We're here to get our number plates and we gotta form a line."

William roused himself, surveyed the gathering and announced in no uncertain terms: "Well, I'm not here for a diver's uniform myself. Line up behind me."

Then somebody made the great discovery.

"This guy's tied to the door!"

Sure enough, William was tied to the doorknob.

"And I've been this way since midnight," he announced, "and I'm goin' to be this way when the door opens and I get yanked in. I'm first."

So William Parson, who works in a Columbus avenue accessory store and who waited eight hours tied to the registry door, was the first to get his plates.

"Naw, I'm not tired," he said.

ARREST MAN, SEEK TWO WOMEN IN $200,000 HUB STEAMSHIP CO. THEFT

Revealing alleged thefts of $200,000 from the Eastern Steamship Company, police today arrested one man and admitted that several other persons, including two women, would be taken into custody as soon as they could be found.

The man arrested was Michael Friedman of Audubon road who is charged in an indictment warrant with receiving $40,000 stolen from the steamship company, according to the police.

The alleged thefts are said to have been committed over a period of two years, varying amounts being taken to total $200,000.

At least six persons and perhaps eight, some of them trusted employes of the company were to be arrested, police said. Friedman was arrested by Inspectors Frank Haggerty and John Mealey of police headquarters, following long and secret investigation by a private detective agency.

A report of the investigation of large alleged thefts from the Eastern Steamship Company leaked out several days ago and the amount of money involved as well as the entire situation was minimized by other newspapers, not the Evening American, after an unsuccessful attempt to get the facts.

DIVER NEARLY BLIND IN HUNT FOR BODIES ON S4

Provincetown, Dec. 31.—Divers cut away the wooden covering over the engine room hatch of the ill-fated S-4 today. Pieces of the wreckage floated to the surface.

If bodies are found when the divers enter the hatch they will be attached to ropes and raised to the surface for immediate transfer to the Boston Navy Yard aboard the U. S. S. Bushnell.

Considerable excitement attended the use of axes and crowbars by the divers 102 feet below.

Diver Bradford Bedford, of New London, Conn., making his first dive, telephoned to the Falcon that he was going blind.

Diver William Carr of Philadelphia, notified, hurried to Bedford's side and found him groping on the floor of the ocean. Carr carried Bedford to the fifty-foot level platform.

After Bedford had been hauled to the Falcon's deck his vision was found to be blanked by forged eye plates in his helmet and he was rushed to the decompression room with blood flowing from his nose.

The call went down the telephone line to Carr:

"Shall we haul you up?"

"No," was the answer. "I'm going down to open that hatch."

ANOTHER ARREST, 2 WOMEN HELD IN SHIP THEFT

George W. Gordon, 42, of the Fenway, an accountant and auditor, the second man to be arrested in connection with the larceny from the Eastern Steamship Co. was taken into custody by inspectors late this afternoon. Two women relatives of one of the men arrested were taken to headquarters and held pending investigation.

BROWN 'IRON MAN' STAR FINED AS DRUNK DRIVER

Providence, Dec. 31 (I.N.S.).—Roy Randall, quarterback of the famous Brown University "iron man" eleven and captain of the 1927 team, was fined $200 in District Court today after admitting sufficient evidence to convict on a charge of drunken driving. He was also fined $10 on a charge of possessing liquor and appealed.

100 IN PERIL IN FOG OFF N. E.; SHIPS CRASH

Collision of two steamships in Vineyard Haven and the grounding of a third on Nauset Beach, Cape Cod, imperilled the lives of more than 100 officers and men today, the second day of the worst Winter fog experienced along the coast in many years.

Other shipping along the New England coast was hampered by the thick weather, and passengers on at least two coastwise liners were marooned at sea.

Shoving her bow at small's pace through the dense vapor and darkness off Hedge Fence lightship, the freighter Lake Inglenook, out of Boston for New York, collided with the Coastwise Transportation Corporation collier, Norfolk.

The Norfolk, a gaping hole in her engineroom bulkhead and filling fast, raced shoreward and was beached on the sands at Vineyard Haven to save the lives of the 43 men aboard her.

The Norfolk, heavily laden with coal, had 21 feet of water in her you would have met me when I told you, you wouldn't have got into this mess. Some day I may see you, if they don't catch me, and I'm not going to let them do that."

The startling admission by Mrs. Carrie M. Driskell, 42-year-old stepgrandmother of Welby Hunt, that she and her grandson had sought to rent a double apartment in the Bellevue Arms inspired district attorney's investigators today to redouble their efforts to uncover new evidence in the Marion Parker case.

HELD MARION THERE.

Hickman says it was in his apartment in the Bellevue Arms that he held Marion captive and, unaided, put her to death.

In a previous confession, which he has since repudiated, Hickman declared that a man, "Andrew Craner," and a woman, "Juno Dunning," were his accomplices.

Hunt, 16-year-old Kansas City youth, and Hickman, who were schoolmates and later worked as bank messengers under Perry M. Parker, father of the murdered girl, have admitted that they embarked together on a career of crime, which was climaxed on Christmas eve, 1924, by the fatal shooting of Ivy Thorne, Los Angeles druggist, in a frustrated holdup of his Rose Hill pharmacy.

Both boys formerly lived in the Alhambra home of Hunt's grandfather, Abner Driskell, well-to-do dry goods merchant, whose mysterious "suicide" at the age of 80 also is being investigated by the district attorney's office.

Hunt, who admits he participated in the Rose Hill Pharmacy holdup, but denies responsibility for the death of Thorne, was accused by deputy sheriffs of firing the fatal shot because an autopsy report revealed that a .38 calibre bullet had taken the druggist's life.

CHANGES CONFESSION.

Hickman, in his confessions, said Hunt was carrying a .38 automatic pistol and he a .32 calibre gun. Hunt maintained that his weapon was on safety and that he did not fire a shot.

Detective Chief Herman Cline announced today that Hickman had changed his written confession to the murder of the Parker girl, refuting his previous declaration that he throttled his victim because of an uncontrollable desire to kill.

Hickman now says, according to Cline, that he feared that the girl would hinder his plot to obtain $1,500 ransom from her father if she were permitted to live.

Police today were searching for two men reported to have overheard Hickman and Hunt in conference two days before Marion Parker was kidnaped.

must follow illegal sales of liquor, the commissioner ordered. Notes of the manner of handling and distributing liquor are to be taken by the police.

Resort managers will receive special attention and all reports will be filed with the superintendent.

Hotel and night club celebrations must cease on the stroke of twelve.

While the Kenmore, Buckminster and Lenox canceled their special programs for the evening, the other hotels are going right ahead with arrangements to provide just as good a time as possible under the circumstances. If you haven't made a reservation for the evening and want one, no doubt you can get it at the last minute.

Registrar Goodwin added his voice of warning to the chorus from the Mayor and police department.

Bring along a sober chauffeur," is his advice to the motorist, and "Get a guide," his word to the pedestrian.

Watch services at the Boston churches will be the only midnight events which will not come under police supervision.

State police and Federal prohibition enforcers obtained plenty of sleep today so as to be wide awake tonight.

So if you're up at midnight, watch your step. And if by chance your neighbor is up, too, be careful how you greet him. A good hearty whisper is the thing. Like this:

"Happy New Year."

Pay Million in New York to Dance New Year In

New York, Dec. 31 (A.P.)—A welcome, promising to be even madder and merrier than those of the past awaited 1928 here.

It was estimated 100,000 persons would dine and dance the old year out and the new year in, paying at least $1,000,000 for the privilege.

Clarence D. Chamberlin, transatlantic flier, expects to welcome the New Year in the air. He announced that at midnight he would fly over Manhattan in a plane decked in electric lights.

Night clubs, with cover charges averaging $12 a person and in many cases $20, had squeezed in the last extra table days ago.

Theatres also had boosted their box office prices and with the addition of the speculators' profit, tickets for popular Broadway shows were selling as high as $24 each.

The dining rooms of all leading hotels were booked to capacity, the McAlpin and Astor hotels reporting reservations for 6,000 persons for dinner and dancing.

HOLIDAY RUM SCHOONER CAPTURED 11 MILES OUT

With a large cargo of holiday liquor aboard, according to Coast Guard officials, the British schooner Stella R., boarded by the crew of a patrol boat approximately 11 miles off Cape Cod, was anchored in Boston harbor today and under the watchful eyes of guards awaiting an investigation by Deputy Customs Collector Thomas F. Finnegan.

The vessel was hailed two near the 12-mile limit that court action against it may not develop. Fog caused Deputy Finnegan to delay his inspection of the schooner at her anchorage off Bird Island flats.

LINCOLN REAL ESTATE MAN SUICIDE IN AUTO

Seated in the rear of his parked automobile, William M. Hilliard, 48, a real estate man of Hilliard road, Lincoln, shot an drilled himself on the Cambridge Turnpike in Lincoln, some distance from his home.

BANDITS KIDNAP BANKER, THEN GET $80,000

Chicago, Dec. 31 (A.P.)—Posing as prohibition agents, six men kidnaped the teller of the Ravenswood National Bank and his parents here today, holding the father and mother captives in a garage while they forced the son to open the bank's vault. They escaped with $80,000.

As George Anderson, the teller, drove into his garage shortly before midnight, six men stepped forward and said they were prohibition agents. They wanted to search his automobile and home, they said, and would not harm him if he remained quiet.

Mr. and Mrs. Algot Anderson, his parents, were made captive in the house. Drawing revolvers, the men ordered the family out of the house.

They took them to a private garage, where they bound the Andersons and held them until about 6 o'clock.

The currency was in strong boxes which express messengers were to have taken to another bank in the Loop district.

After loading their automobile with loot, the men gagged Anderson, put a pillow slip over his head, bound him and locked him in the washroom. A bank policeman found Anderson when he came to work.

The four bandits then returned to the garage for their two companions who were guarding the elder Andersons and drove away. Mr. and Mrs. Anderson succeeded in freeing themselves and called the police.

Anderson has been an employe of the bank since he was a boy. He is 27 years old.

"We believe his story implicitly," declared Walter D. Rathje, president.

number four bulkhead when she completed a three-mile race to save and ran aground. She will not be moved, according to her captain, T. L. Brooks, for several days until repairs are made.

The collier was bound for Portland from Philadelphia. She lost part of her cargo of anthracite during the race to shore and safety.

Although badly stove about the bow, the Lake Ingenoek proceeded on her course to New York. She cleared Boston in ballast. Had she carried a cargo, shipping men believe she would have sung the Norfolk.

Captain Brooks placed the blame for the collision upon the freighter.

The third ship in distress was the United States Shipping Board vessel Natirar, which laid two days keel in the Nauset sands. By radio the Natirar informed the Pamet River Coast Guard station at North Truro of her predicament and the cutter Mojave was sent to her assistance, but before the cutter reached her she was able to float herself.

Natirar was bound from New York to Boston, here to fill out her cargo for German ports.

The log extending from Eastport along the coast to the South Atlantic endangered the coastwise shipping.

The Eastern Steamship Liner Robert E. Lee, which did not arrive in Boston until last evening although due at 7 a. m. yesterday was today anchored somewhere off Wing Neck light in Buzzards Bay on her return trip with scores of passengers. She left Boston at 11 p. m. and had proceeded through the canal before the fog stopped her.

The George Washington, the same line, which cleared New York late last night for Boston, was unreported today and is believed anchored this side of the canal.

Six freighters ready to sail and all harbor shipping except ferries and tugs were held at their piers by the fog.

HUMAN CHAIN FAILS TO SAVE LIFE; GETS BODY

A human chain of four Cambridge policemen and four civilians, risking their lives on the thin ice, today dragged a man believed to be Harry A. Lyon of Ballan street, Dorchester, from the Charles river opposite the Technology buildings, but he was dead when the relief hospital was reached.

Patrolman Thomas O'Neill was at the front of the human chain and took the man from the water, aided by Sergeant Patrick J. Healy and Patrolman Martin O'Neill and John Sullivan.

VATICAN CUTS OUT ALL HORSE-DRAWN VEHICLES

Rome, Dec. 31 (A.P.)—The Vatican will be completely motorized for the New Year.

Today was the last upon which horse-drawn vehicles were to be seen in the gardens and grounds adjoining the apostolic palace. Until now the pontiff has retained a few coaches and other carriages for members of his suite, although he preferred automobiles which have been given him by admirers.

ARREST MAN IN LIQUOR RAID MADE ON KENNELS

Norwell, Dec. 31.—One man was arrested and State police today seized 30 barrels of denatured alcohol, 30 barrels of mash and a 75-gallon still in a raid in a barn on the premises of the fashionable Accord Kennels.

The man under arrest is Able Hanson, alias John Smith, according to the police. He was arraigned in Abington court charged with keeping and exposing and manufacture. Trial will be held Tuesday.

EXTEND TIME TO GET '28 PLATES

Because of the last minute rush of applicants for 1928 automobile registration plates, Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin today ordered his office to remain open until 5 p. m.

A line of persons, some of whom had arrived at 6:30 this morning, was still extended outside the office when the Saturday closing hour at noon arrived, with a large force of clerks struggling to take care of the demand.

Asked if any extra time would be granted for the use of 1927 plates because of the mixups at State Prison, Goodwin said the law provided that 1927 plates may be used only until noon January 1.

At least one man profited by the last minute rush for plates. Wearing a hat but without an overcoat, this man passed up and down the line, offering to get plates for anyone for $2. A number of persons took advantage of the offer, but whether or not they secured their plates without waiting could not be learned.

LAWRENCE MERCHANT HELD IN FIRE FRAUD

Lawrence, Dec. 31 (A.P.)—David Oppenheim, local merchant, was held in $1,000 bond for a hearing January 4, when he appeared in District Court here today on two counts of burning to injure an insurance company. The continuance was granted at the request of State Fire Inspector Whittemore, who said an analysis of materials seized in connection with two fires in Oppenheim's branch here within 36 hours of each other had not been completed.

BOOTLEGGER TO BLIND SCORED

Informed that there was "a notorious place in H street that sells liquor to the blind," Judge Edward L. Logan in South Boston Court today ordered that the facts be given to the District Attorney.

He found Abraham Jacobs, fifty-three, guilty of keeping and exposing liquor for sale, imposing a fine of $250 and a suspended sentence of three months. Jacobs appealed.

Judge Logan, told it was Jacobs' first offence, said it seemed strange to him that the H street place kept cropping into court, but always with a "first offence defendant" to answer to the charges.

"Isn't this a notorious place that sells liquor to the blind?" he asked, and was informed by Police Sergeant Frederick N. Wheeler that it was. "When this case goes to the District Attorney, see that he gets all the facts, including the record of this place and the number of men who have appeared in court on charges originating there," he ordered.

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN
BOSTON, SATURDAY, DECEMBER 31, 1927

"MY, BUT ISN'T BOSTON QUIET?"
That's probably what 1928 will say first, for the old town is due to receive the new born year in glum silence—IF (big IF) Mayor Nichols' orders for sedate decorum and sober dignity are adherred to.

NOTABLES TO ATTEND GALA OPENING

The first business day of 1928 will usher in Boston's newest broadcast feature, namely, the Boston Evening American studio of Station WLOE.

The new station, which has been issuing experimental programs from a temporary studio during the past fortnight, starts on its regular schedule next Tuesday, and will carry through a huge inaugural program into the midnight hours.

With daily programs sponsored by the Boston Evening American and the Loew theatres, Station WLOE brings to the vast radio public of New England entertainment and educational resources far beyond the scope of the ordinary commercial station.

Last minute news dispatches supplied by the Boston Evening American and Advertiser correspondents and by the International News and other world-wide newsgathering organizations of the Hearst newspapers, will be issued at regular intervals, and also at times of exceptionally important happenings.

The various departments of the Boston Evening American will have weekly periods devoted to sporting comment, society gossip, household arts, editorial discussion, and financial advice to investors. In addition, the Boston Evening American will supply programs of light and classical music.

A veritable gold mine of entertainment is to be found in the programs being planned by the Loew Boston Theatres. Microphones have been placed in the orchestra pits

STATE THREAT TO IMPOUND LYNN DOGS

Frank R. Cummings, State director of the animal industry division, today appealed to the incoming City Council of Lynn to take action on his request for a 30-day dog restraining order in that city.

Mayor Bauer has refused to issue such an order, and has threatened to arrest any outsider entering the city for the purpose of impounding Lynn dogs.

In the event that the council takes no action by January 15, Cummings said today, he will direct the local dog catcher to impound unleashed dogs. Should this latter official fail to carry out the order, he said, State enforcement officials will go in and do the job.

"And it will be done," the director stated firmly.

MASKED THUGS ROB AUTOISTS

An armed, masked robber and his "pal," who prey on automobile parking parties in secluded highways, are being sought by police of Winchester and nearby towns as a result of two hold-ups in Winchester during the night.

Parked with a girl on Hutchinson road, Edward Ball of Dedham was robbed of $14, according to police, and Calvin D. Wentworth of Waltham, parked with a girl on Highland street, was searched, but saved his money by having hidden it in the car.

PROPOSES GAS TAX OF 4 CENTS A GALLON

A gasoline tax of four cents a gallon on automobiles, including trucks, with a purely nominal registration fee of $1, is proposed by Representative Joseph Martin of Marblehead in a bill which he will file with the Legislature next Tuesday.

Three cents of the tax would go to the State for highway purposes and the remaining cent to the cities and towns in proportion to the amount each contributes to the State tax.

The present special fee to dealers would be abolished and they, like individual owners, would pay but the $1 registration.

The representative figures that his bill will yield the State, on the basis of 1927 registrations, $12,500,000 a year, exclusive of fines. This is about $200,000 more than the State received from both sources this year, he declared.

SCREAM FOILS BAG-SNATCHER

A snatch-bag thief attempted to steal the purse of Hazel Kelley, twenty-four, No. 85 Alston street, Cambridge, today, as she was on her way to work in East Cambridge.

She screamed and Patrolman Charles Warnick, on special detail in the hunt for bag thieves, pursued and captured a man who was held on suspicion.

COMING ASSEMBLY BALL SMARTLY SPONSORED, DECLARES BETTY ALDEN

Highly Placed Society Matrons Named in List Working to Make Affair Next Week a Pronounced Success

NEXT WEEK, FOR THOSE SOCIALLY IMPORTANT ONES WHO form Boston's aristocracy, comes the very climax of the Winter season. The Assembly Ball is staged each year with a formal brilliance and an accompaniment of preliminary dinners such as no other occasion of Boston's Winter calls forth. The Assemblies are famous in the town's fashionable history. For many and many a year have they taken their stately and individual way, formally arranged and formally carried through, with Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer and Mr. Samuel Hooper Hooper to guide them in the way they should go.

THESE TWO ACKNOWLEDGED LEADERS OF THE EXCLUSIVES have a measure of assistance in their Assembly duties. There is a Ladies Committee that shines resplendent with the names of Mrs. Edward L. Bigelow, Mrs. Brandegee, Mrs. James Lawrence and Mrs. Bayard Warren. Then there are the "Managers," Harcourt Amory and Joseph Grafton Minot, Mr. Hooper and Samuel Huntington Wolcott. Truly representative names, these, an Amory, a Wolcott, a Minot and a Hooper; a Warren, a Brandegee, a Bigelow and a Lawrence. In such care the Assembly continues to be superlatively exclusive, and supremely brilliant.

FOR THE ASSEMBLY, ON JANUARY 6, PRACTICALLY THE entire lower floor of the Hotel Copley-Plaza is reserved. It's the one and only function of the Boston Winter that varies the modern dance scheme and reverts to the days before syncopation, when the cotillion was as much a part of a smart and formal function as the family jewels, the clawhammer and the champagne. Boston does its one Assembly in sumptuous manner. Perhaps it is a haughty gesture to the rising tide of informality, outcome of the age of jazz, that envelopes the moderns.

VERY HAPPILY DOES THE BIRTHDAY ANNIVERSARY OF Major-General Clarence Ransom Edwards fall on New Year's day. So there is a double incentive for celebration in the Edwards menage, and very brilliantly do they make use of the opportunity. The welcome to New Year's and the General's birthday celebration is a lunch-on, or "Doneerving" in Westwood, very large and smart and altogether a high light of the midwinter season. It's been an annual festivity for some time, and although on the cards it is named "luncheon" in reality there's always a few choice spirits who stay over for dinner and the evening.

THE GENERAL AND HIS POPULAR SPOUSE HAVE CELEBRATED the double occasion all around the world, just wherever their home happened to be during the General's Army service and their roof-tree was set up at the moment—the Near East or the Far East, in London or Paris or Washington. "Doneerving" is a pleasant place, a spacious Colonial house of brick, having wide chimney places as a Colonial house should, it sits on a breeze-swept Westwood hilltop, looking across other hilltops of that exclusive and serenely quiet village.

THIS NEW YEAR'S SEASON FINDS MRS. EDWARDS WITH several reasons for rejoicing. One is the huge success achieved by the Soldiers' Shop, otherwise the "Disabled Ex-Service Men's Exchange," that has Mrs. Edwards as founder and supporter and good angel generally. One month recently there was a good round sum, running well through four figures, going back to the disabled men workers who keep the shop filled with their handiwork. Another good deed for which Mrs. Edwards is more than a little responsible is the endowment of two beds at the Children's Hospital for the children of disabled ex-service men. I believe the Legion Auxiliary had a hand in the affair financially.

BESIDES THE ANNUAL EDWARDS FIXTURE THAT HAS A service angle, there is another large New Year's Day affair that interests the Army and the Navy. Colonel John Woodward and Mrs. Woodward are giving a tea, at their home in Sewall avenue, in Brookline. High ranking officers of the various service branches will be there with their spouses.

JOINING THE NORTHERN EXODUS ARE MISS ELIZABETH BEAL and her mother, Mrs. Boylston Adams Beal. With trunks full of smartest raiment they have gone to Ottawa, where a round of brilliant entertaining awaits them. They are to be guests of the Governor General of Canada and the Viscountess Willingdon, and of their official family. All of which means entertainment grandly vice-regal, for the New Year's advent and for the visitors from Boston. Official brilliance and diplomatic high life is second nature to the Beals.

THEY BELONG IN THE FRONT RANK OF THE AMERICAN diplomatic family abroad, since Mr. Beal has for these many years been connected with the American Embassy in the world's most brilliant capital, London. Added to that, the Beal name in Boston is no plus ultra, and so is "Grew." Mrs. Beal's maiden cognomen. Mrs. Beal is an extremely handsome woman, beautifully turned out, and Miss Beal follows mater's example, with a penchant for charming clothes, expertly worn.

THE BIG CITY IS EVER SO ATTRACTIVE TO CERTAIN YOUNG set members who adore the sophistication New York puts into its New Year's observance. Miss Miriam Winslow, talented dancer, superb equestrienne, and now about to be a debutante, has gone over to Gotham for the holiday interlude. Miss Winslow is to be formally presented at an enormous tea given in the magnificent Brookline home of her parents, the Sidney W Winslows, Jr., early in the New Year, and almost immediately after there is a large house dance, also at the Brookline establishment.

MISS WINSLOW IS A FORTUNATE YOUNG GIRL TO HAVE SO splendid a setting for her coming out. "Fernwood" is a wide domain, of many rolling acres and wooded park, with a luxuriously appointed manor house. The Winslows' elder daughter, now Mrs. Caspar Ranger, was presented there, and married there, and now Miss Miriam emerges from the schoolgirl age to don the debutante white. Mr. and Mrs. Winslow were in Europe for the Autumn, else the debut would have been accomplished earlier. Its lateness in the calendar perhaps occasions the more interest, since the buds are almost bereft of parties exclusively theirs.

AFTER A STRENUOUS WEEK OF BENEFIT ARRANGING, MISS PEGGY BENT is away to Gotham and its surpassing amusements for the holiday. Miss Bent is ardently for the S. P. C. C. cause; by no means the dilettante worker either, but an everyday assistant of the Junior Division that does so splendid a work for children. Miss Dorothy Windrop, too, is in this category of ardent workers. Also in the list of those departing elsewhere to celebrate the New Year's advent although she goes South to celebrate en famille rather than to New York's bright lights.

THE HUGH BANCROFTS ARE CELEBRATING THE NEW YEAR'S arrival at their seashore home in Cohasset. They have their young people there and ever so many young friends of the young people to fill their chairs and their beds, with gay time. The stables house a stable of mettlesome mounts, and in the carriage house rigs of all descriptions abound. Both Miss Jane Bancroft and Miss Jessie Bancroft are expert at riding and driving. Cohasset offers some splendid wood roads for a canter, as they both well know.

THE YOUNGER GENERATION TAKES TO THE ICE AS READILY as the proverbial duck to the water. Miss Helen Quinton, small daughter of Colonel and Mrs. A. B. Quinton, is on the ice morning and afternoon So is Miss Mary J. Rockwood, daughter to the E. F. Rockwoods of New Haven, who came to Boston to spend the holidays with friends. The Quintons are out-of-towners also, the Major being on duty at the Aberdeen Proving Grounds in Virginia. Little Miss Jean Lotz of Newton Centre completes a trio of young skaters for whom no day on the ice is long enough.

ONE EXPECTS SKATING OF HIGH ORDER BY MISS MARIBEL Vinson. She ranks sufficiently high to be included with the United States Olympic skaters, and soon she embarks for St. Moritz with that stellar aggregation. Miss Vinson on the outdoor rink at the Country Club is a joy to behold. She has dash and finish and a marvelous facility on the ice that leaves the onlooker breathless. Potential champions one might call the small Minot girls, Elizabeth and Marian. If practice will do it, they'll be champions themselves some day.

MEXICAN SLAYER OF BOSTON MAN MAY BE SET FREE

trials," the mock justice of which has been served up by Mexico to appease this country's demands in a long list of similar atrocities. Diaz, wealthy Mexican with strong political affiliations, will be either acquitted or sentenced to a short prison term.

Brewer's widow assumed the responsibility of employing detectives to investigate. There was an eye-witness to the shooting and the identity of the slayer was common knowledge. Diaz continued unmolested about his business in Guadalajara and Mrs. Brewer met with the obstacle of utter indifference on every hand in her attempts to persuade the authorities to apprehend him.

"In the meantime," said Brewer's brother, "Hallowell and I determined upon a course of action. We each had personal friends in the State Department and separately we addressed them, seeking Diaz' arrest and justice.

"Hallowell hoped that favorable results might be forthcoming but from the beginning I believed the case almost hopeless."

SLAYER KNOWN

Brewer was slain June 1, although news of his death did not come out of Mexico until two days later. The victim's brother and his university classmate and best friend, R. H. Hallowell, immediately set to work to secure the apprehension of the slayer and obtain some measure of reparation for Brewer's widow and two children.

FINALLY ARRESTED

The State Department at Washington dispatched its first note to the Foreign Office calling for the arrest of Brewer's slayer. The answer was that Diaz had fled, but that the Mexican authorities were seeking to bring him to justice.

A second note and a third, diplomatically worded, followed. Then a fourth that brought no action whatsoever. Diaz was still missing, came the reply, and the authorities were on his trail. Eventually, they promised, he would be brought to justice.

Then Mrs. Brewer who refused to be cajoled by the suave promises inferred in the State Department that Diaz was present in Guadalajara, going about his business in the usual manner and that no effort had been made to apprehend him.

A fifth note, dated August 25, and more vigorous in its tenor informed the Foreign Office of the information furnished by Brewer's widow. And on September 15, three and a half months following the crime, Diaz was arrested.

Commenting upon this, Brewer's brother said today: "I have learned through the newspapers that Diaz, my brother's slayer, was placed under arrest. I have not been informed of that fact by the State Department.

"I know that Diaz is wealthy and has political influence. I know that there is an attempt underway to 'frame' the case—that the only witness of the shooting has withdrawn his original version and made a new statement to corroborate Diaz in his plea to make the shooting one of self-defense.

"I do not know that Diaz is in jail nor do I know that he will ever be brought to trial."

A sixth note, warning the Mexican government that the United States has reason to believe there may be a miscarriage of justice when Diaz goes to trial has been sent the Foreign Office and acknowledged.

"Drastic action — war or the threat of war—is the only action that will result in justice in such cases in Mexico, our friends in the State Department have informed us," said Charles Brewer. "That drastic action, we were further enlightened, will not be taken by this administration. A prominent member of Congress from Massachusetts also has informed us that we could expect no action.

"In a nut-shell we learn that the State Department is convinced nothing will be done in the case, that it will be dropped and the clamor that followed in its wake allowed to die out as it has in other instances.

FAIR TRIAL IMPOSSIBLE

"My brother left a widow and two children. The treatment of his widow by the Mexican government following the shooting is something inconceivable to us, yet the result of a situation actually existing down there. Every obstacle was placed in her path by government officials and the courts when she sought some gesture of justice and reparation.

"Yet I have some hope, however faint, that Congress may set a definite policy in regard to such atrocities. Representative Robert Bacon, of New York, has something of the nature in mind, I believe. I have conferred with him once and plan to do so again.

"The procedure would perhaps take the form of a Congressional investigation of all such cases, during the course of which the State Department would be called upon to make public the facts in this and similar Mexican atrocities.

LINDY HOPS FOR SAN SALVADOR TOMORROW

Belize, British Honduras, Dec. 31 (I.N.S.).—All the skill of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, the world's foremost aviator, will be needed when he hops off, perhaps tomorrow, on the third leg of his Latin-American good-will tour.

The smallness and roughness of the combination polo and flying field, part of which is a swamp, and overhanging telephone wires, will make a getaway hazardous even for Lindbergh.

Colonel Lindbergh thoroughly examined his plane this morning and superintended some slight repair work. During the 240-mile flight from Guatemala City the exhaust pipe of his Wright whirlwind motor broke, but the damage was not serious.

Colonel Lindbergh hopes to hop off on the 240-mile leg to San Salvador at dawn tomorrow, but if mechanical or weather conditions prevent he will leave on Monday.

Tonight Colonel Lindbergh will be honor guest at a banquet and ball.

Mrs. Lindbergh Held at St. Louis by Snow and Wind

St. Louis, Dec. 31 (A.P.).—Snow and wind this morning prevented the takeoff of the Ford monoplane bearing Mrs. Evangeline Lodge Lindbergh and party on the next leg of its flight to Detroit. Weather permitting, a start will be made later in the day, it was announced.

The mother of the world-famous flier, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, arrived here Thursday on the return trip from Mexico City.

NEED OF VISION IN BUSINESS STRESSED

"American business today is prosperous, but there remains untouched an untold wealth of business prosperity, and it is up to executives and sales managers to capitalize this opportunity," declared William Sample, vice-president of the Ralston Purina Company, at the annual sales rally of the Executives' Club and the Sales Managers' Club today at the Chamber of Commerce. "It doesn't require super-salesmanship to realize this opportunity. It does require vision, planning and the ability to see the plan through. That is what characterized the achievements of Lindbergh." Another speaker was P. D. Saylor, president of the Canada Dry Ginger Ale Company, Inc., whose subject was "The Romance of American Business."

Actress to Wed Baron's Son

London, Dec. 31 (A. P.).—Notice of the coming marriage of Miss Edythe Baker, American revue actress, and Gerald D'Erlanger, son of Baron Emile D'Erlanger, widely known banker, was given at St. George's, Hanover Square, register office today.

TORCHES BURN INTO WRECK TO SAVE INJURED

Chicago, Dec. 31 (A.P.).—Three Chicago & Alton Railroad trains crashed in the yards here today during a blinding snow storm, killing woman, injuring twenty-five passengers and one of the railroad employes, some of them seriously.

Several hours after the accident, firemen and railroad employes started cutting through the wreckage with acetylene torches when they found that one woman was imprisoned in the wrecked compartment of a Pullman coach and one or possibly more persons were lying injured and unable to free themselves in the wreckage of another coach.

The imprisoned woman was able to converse with her rescuers as they began cutting away the ruins of the heavy steel coach in the snowstorm.

She said her name was Miss Mary Striegal of Tulsa, Okla., and that another woman lay motionless by her side and she did not know whether this woman was dead or alive. She said she thought she could also see three or four more bodies partly buried in the wreckage of the car in the compartment of which she was held a prisoner. After some hours work she was rescued alive.

At the same time acetylene torches were brought into play on the sides of another steel coach where one man's form could be seen and where frenzied believed others were injured and unable to help themselves.

DIVERS HACK $4 IN BODY HUNT

Besides Carr and Bedford, Divers Frank Crilley and D. E. Burg went to the bottom, carrying crowbars, axes and other tools.

Captain Hartley of the Falcon said the divers would bring up all bodies found in the engine room. It was expected 10 bodies at least would be found near the hatch where it was believed the men had gathered in their efforts to get air.

Washington, Dec. 31 (A.P.).—The Navy Department was secure today by the parents of Commander Roy K. Jones, commander of the submarine S4, with having "cruelly indifferent" towards the crew of the sunken ship.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. John M. Jones, set forth these views in a jointly signed letter to Representative McClintic of Oklahoma, a Democrat on the House Naval Committee, who has demanded a congressional inquiry into the sinking of the ship.

COCK ROBIN AGAIN TAKES THE COUNT

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

AN anxious evening spent with the best of the local splurges in mystery drama, leaves but little to be desired. Any first class guessing contest would, undoubtedly, stir the brain to the same identical activity and leave nothing more than a smoky sediment to take the place of solution. Really, there is little left for the spoken drama beyond mystery and guess work—a matter that settles down heavily upon the Hollis in these post-holiday expeditions. Who killed Cock Robin was the perplexing mystery of a childhood surrounded and smothered by the Victorian Eighties; now the same uneasy problem takes the present-day theatre by the ears—and we are still in doubt. Anyway, right or wrong, we'd like to know who did the dirty deed.

ACCEPTING, in principle, that the modern drama of the spoken word has but little to hang upon beyond open-faced crime and potential mystery, it is easy to sit in friendly view upon "Cock Robin" at the Hollis. There is nothing in the story that is even vivacious or vital; there is nothing in the action to stimulate nervous tension, or even evoke twitters or screams. But there is an abundance of novelty—a new idea. Killing men in cold blood in the presence of an inoffensive audience is getting to be an old story—a good companion to Paul Revere's midnight ride and the charge of the Light Brigade. In any event you probably will like it and accept it as the real thing, or, perhaps, just sniff and remark that it might be worse.

MYSTERY in the theatre works out its own salvation and, on the most acceptable rules of art, "Cock Robin" appears to be doing very well. As a primary motive this play develops a problem in criminology of both perplexity and embarrassment. Any one of five or six men and women in the cast might be held responsible; as a matter of fact but few of the players escape suspicion. And so, during the performance, the solution becomes a matter of conjecture—of hazard and guess. Unless the theatre goer tires of murder and mystery these problems will lure the itching, restless dollar into the box office. It may be remarked, anyway, that "Cock Robin" is the most intelligent of the new crop of dramatic teasers.

* * *

SINCE man first climbed out of a tree and stood on two legs, grasping at straws has been the most determined exercise of the boys sporting beyond their depth. The lusty lads who have made easy riches in burlesque are now, apparently, seeking an easy way out of their anxieties. The most recent gesture is the sweeping cut in prices directed and ordered by Charles H. Waldron, who presides over the theatre on Hanover street that bears his own name. In the theatrical evolution of the past three years burlesque has borne more than its share of burden and misery. Whether the casual lopping off of prices to the consumer will restore the institution to former glories Mr. Waldron may be able to explain before the Lenten season throws its costly embargo upon playgoers.

KENT SECURE IN FILMS

Larry Kent's stock has made a new high record with his selection by John McCormick, producer of Colleen Moore's starring pictures for the leading male role in her support in "Her Wild Oat," the gay First National comedy, starting tomorrow at the Olympia and Scollay.

This is the most important part entrusted to the young leading man in his short but successful career in Hollywood. McCormick has unlimited confidence in Kent and predicts a brilliant future for him.

Kent came to Hollywood two years ago after leaving the medical college of the University of California. The day he reached Hollywood he landed a job in two-reel pictures. Then came juvenile leads in "McFadden's Flats," "The Sea Tiger," "Barbed Wire" and other productions. Kent was one of a dozen prospective leading men who were given screen tests for the part.

He served in the United States Navy during the war, which was natural enough inasmuch as he was born at sea. Kent is blue-eyed and has light brown hair. He is one of Hollywood's crack athletes.

"Follies" Returning With Lively Eddie Cantor Et Al

The outstanding personality in the Ziegfeld Follies which will return for a two weeks' engagement at the Colonial, Jan. 2 is Eddie Cantor. Cantor's delivery of a song has something of a chattiness about it that creates the impression he is making the words up as he is going along and the melody is simply a spontaneous accompaniment. In his present numbers in the "Follies" he has the opportunities comparable to those in "Kid Boots."

Eddie Cantor.

Boston theatre-goers will remember that while in this play Eddie was continuously bursting forth into a scene with the unexpectedness of a bareback rider jumping through a paper hoop. He personally declares that his sense of comedy results from his natural desire to jog people out of their set state of mind, to startle their risibilities and make them realize that the unexpected can happen.

Newton Novelist-Singer Will Give Song Recital

The Women's Council of Boston University will present Dorothy Speare, soprano, in a concert of songs and operatic airs at Symphony Hall, Wednesday evening, January 18. The proceeds are to be devoted to the woman's building fund of the university.

Dorothy Speare first flashed into fame when a student at Radcliffe. Shortly after graduating she published a somewhat electrifying novel "Dancers in the Dark." This has been followed by three other best-sellers. Meanwhile, the young girl, who is a native of Newton, pursued the study of her voice.

She made her operatic debut at Asti, Italy, and later appeared in Milan and other Italian cities, singing such roles as Violetta in "Traviata," Lucia and Marguerite. Within the past fortnight she has appeared with distinct success in "Carmen," "Mignon" and "Faust," with the Washington Grand Opera at the national capital.

NEW YEAR'S SHOW

The Capitol Theatre, Broadway, Somerville, will have a midnight show on New Year's Sunday night. Among the artists who will appear in the eight acts of vaudeville are: The Belmont Four of radio fame, and Grace Hushen's Jazz Band.

NEXT WEEK'S NEW BILLS

ST. JAMES—(Stock) "The Song and Dance Man," a comedy by George M. Cohan. The story concerns the trials of a small time song and dance man. Written originally for Lynne Overman. However, Mr. Cohan himself finally played the title role with happy success. In the cast are Walter Gilbert, in the part created by Cohan; also Frank Charlton, Clara Joel and Edith Speare. Staged by Charles I. Schofield.

GAYETY—(Burlesque) "Merry Whirl," a frollicking musical revue. In the featured roles are Art Gardner and Dolly Lewis, while supporting parts are taken by Billy Cavanaugh, a tramp comedian; Lorett Bayes, Nita Bernard, Tom Donnolly, Donna Lee, Jack La Monte and Belle Parry. A chorus of eye filling qualities also is promised.

The Princess

LILLIAN GLASER is a gorgeous Princess Margaret in "The Student Prince." (Opera House.)

SUPREME AS VETERAN

Actors and actresses come and go, but some seem to go on forever. One of these is DeWolf Hopper, now at the Boston Opera House in "The Student Prince."

DeWolf Hopper

Like Francis Wilson, Hopper came of old Quaker stock. His paternal grandfather was a lawyer. DeWolf was christened William DeWolf Hopper, but few persons other than the late Richard Mansfield, ever called him William, and he long ago dropped his first name.

Hopper's early intentions were to go into grand opera. His naturally fine baritone voice gave promise, but nature cast him for comedy roles, giving him 5 feet and more of stature, an unctuous humor, a mobile face and the heart of the eternal boy, without which no comedian ever became great.

DeWolf Hopper appeared for the first time behind the footlights in New York at the Lyceum Theatre as an amateur in a performance of "Connie-ance." During his engagement with Edward Harrigan in "The Blackbird," Clara Louise Kellogg advised Hopper to devote a year or two to voice culture. He followed her advice, with the result that he joined the McCaull Opera Company.

Looking Ahead

"Tell Me Your Troubles" at the Arlington.

BRAW TENOR WAS WHEEZY YOUNGSTER

If you drop into "My Maryland" at the Shubert and cast your eye on Robert Rhodes, the hefty six-foot-in-his-socs exclusive man, with a chest expansion of seven unbelievable inches, you will hardly credit that he was ever a wheezy youngster whose people hiked for the snows to save his life.

On the road they slept often under the stars while the coyotes howled a lullaby. And the boy, already exhibiting an urge to roll his eyes, swing his arms and speak his little piece. Somebody suggested that a course of singing lessons would develop his chest. Bye and bye he went to school and did some dramatic work sufficiently good to get him a place in the stock companies that favored the small towns with a taste of their quality.

When America came into the war he joined the navy, but the ship he was allocated to had her station on the Pacific coast, so he saw nothing of action. The armistice released him at San Francisco and he found he could earn a living playing in vaudeville. Traveled as far east as Chicago and here a partner, whom he joined with, died.

Played the Sultan in Oscar Asche's "Mecca," which Britain had to accept as "Cairo," in consideration of the feelings of her Mohammedan subjects. Here he saved his money in order to study music under good masters. To good purpose, for he is a musical comedy star now of some brilliancy. Played in the New York production of the "Music Box Revue," "Tickle Me" and as Baron Stober in "Blossom Time."

New Year Will Be Heartily Welcomed on Elks Roof

Joy and cheer, favors and favorites, will be the order at the Elks Roof Garden Restaurant with the coming of the New Year.

A new revue will be presented, beginning Monday night, for the diversion of the diners, and it will be the most pretentious that has been offered this season. Heading the long list of entertainers will be seen Pilla and Marie, two of the most artistic dancers who have appeared at the Elks.

COMPOSER IS SOLOIST AT SYMPHONY

By MOSES SMITH

The regular thing in the regular way at symphony concerts is getting to mean a chance in the program previously announced, and in this respect the concerts for this week are regular. The list was juggled by Mr. Koussevitzky until it finally emerged as the Brahms Fourth Symphony and two novelties—Four Epilogues for Chamber Orchestra by Ernest Bloch, and a piano concerto by Alexander Tansman, with the latter present as soloist in the world premiere of his work.

Whatever disappointment the "oldtimers" may have experienced as being deprived of a safe-and-sane program was largely dispelled by the agreeableness of the two new works. Bloch's four unpretentious pieces, which had only recently had a first performance in New York, proved to be quite aways from his more serious style, as he has been disclosed to Boston concert-goers. At last the man unbends, so that a mere music-lover may enjoy his charming fancies. Unfortunately the performance was handicapped by the huge string section of the orchestra, which resulted in oversonority and lack of balance not present in the score itself.

Tansman was already known here by several works, thanks to the evangelical zeal of Mr. Koussevitzky. His latest composition, of uneven merit, has a well-knit structure, interesting thematic material, and moments of rare beauty, as in the introduction to the third movement. The first section of this movement also gave much pleasure, as did the scherzo. Composer and orchestra united in what seemed a fine performance, and Mr. Tansman was cordially applauded.

Brahms' E minor symphony has been a favorite with Mr. Koussevitzky at these concerts, and the writer does not relish not going to complain of hearing it once a year. Brahms wrote four masterpieces in his symphonies, but nowhere is the grandeur sustained quite so steadily, nor is the final impression so unified, as in the Fourth. Conductor and orchestra gave it eloquent rendition.

HARK, THE DISMAL DUO

THE BREATH OF SONG in this case is suspiciously alcoholic. Nevertheless, these two love birds are able to raw out a tune or two. Louise Fazenda and Clyde Cook in "A Sailor's Sweetheart" (Modern).

STAGE AND SCREEN

No Frills for Rafferty

Patrick C. Rafferty, one of whose roles in "Peggy-Ann" is that of the grotesque and heavily mustachioed policeman, was asked by the press agent if he had a scrap book. "Weell, no," from Mr. Rafferty with some hesitancy. "You see I'm not what you might call a fancy fighter."

Executed to Perfection

Harry Langdon, whose new picture, "The Chaser," is scheduled soon for the Olympia, tells of the golf addict sentenced to be hung. Before springing the trap the warden asked if he had any last request to make. "Yes," from the golfer, "how about a couple of practice swings?"

SMILES FOR MANY, TEARS FOR FEW IN THE NEW WEEK'S SCREEN DISPENSATIONS

"I LEFT A GOOD HOME," moans Larry Kent, "because I wanted to have my own way!" "Well," snaps Colleen Moore in the lunch cart scene in "Her Wild Oat"—"Well," says she you look as if you'd had it." This rippling ribbon of celluloid will show jointly at the two Olympias

STARES ON STAIRS. The title of the picture is "Pajamas," and you may see it for them at the Keith-Albee Boston. Olive Borden must be telling John Clark to wait while she goes up yonder to slip on something.

ANY MOTORMAN will tell you it's the uniform that gets 'em. How could any girl resist the get-up of this gallant Legionaire? It ain't human, neighbors! Evelyn Brent and Gary Cooper in "Beau Sabreur" (Metropolitan).

NOTIONS. Mary Pickford is the saleslndy and Charlie Rogers is the customer, or is he just "looking around?" Undoubtedly, Charles is the son of the gent who owns the store. Won't Pa be sore when he knows what's going on. Everybody's Sweetheart is "My Best Girl" (State).

CALICO DAYS IN THE SILENT DRAMA

By LEO GAFFNEY

A GREAT deal of water and not a few peanut shells have eddied in the Frog Pond since little Mary Pickford fed the squirrels on Boston Common. She was then a plump girl of about fifteen, playing a child's part in Belasco's "The Warrens Of Virginia" at the Majestic. And an afternoon in the sparkling sunshine, away from the dusty stage, must have called up more ecstacy in the then unknown infant phenomenon than the most expensive holiday in the high Sierras could afford the Queen of the Movies of today or, to put it more blandly, the golden heroine of "My Best Girl" at Loew's State next week.

AT the time of the Frog Pond janket America's Sweetheart had a muslin dress, thirty dollars a week, a healthy appetite and, dear sir or madame, straight hair! With these rich resources "Our Mary" was a wage-earning member of society and fending for herself; while Ma and Sister Lottie were trouping in ten-twenty-thirty melodrama "fighting the brush," as they say, out where the West begins.

NO one, of course, gave serious thought to moving pictures in those early days except a small group of silly dreamers like David Wark Griffith and Carl Laemmle. Being also of the enterprising few who were not afraid to rush in, rather than of the disdainful concourse who feared to tread, young Miss Pickford marched boldly into the twitching fillums. Her salary was at once the equivalent of the best picture actor of the period—five dollars a day!

GRIFFITH, at the old Biograph studio, was the first to raise the wage scale. He was forced into it by certain circumstances and three boys calling themselves Owen Moore, Arthur Johnson and Mack Sennett, respectively. The "boys" were Mr. Griffith's assistants in "The Wedding," a two-reel classic, purporting to be a lavish drama of the idle rich. In rented frock coats, "raw hammer" species, the three gilded youths were supposed to loll around in the bored attitude of wealthy clubmen. As the trio's only knowledge of things like this had been confined to the magnificent, if somewhat rigid, gentleman who adorned the Hoffman House cigarette package, no one will fail to understand why Mr. Griffith had to explain to them that their acting was rotten.

HIS artistic soul touched to the quick, Arthur Johnson sprang to his feet and with fine scorn replied, "Aw, g'wan! Whaddya want for five bucks a day?" Whereat Mr. Griffith considered for a moment. Then, "Well, boys, do you think you could act ruffled for ten dollars?" Three heads nodded assent and the deal was made.

FROM the most careless consideration of the above facts, and even to the most jaundiced eye, it must be readily apparent that times have changed. Mary Pickford, whose earnings in the films have increased in the same arithmetic progression, is now encompassed by a fortune that has often been curtly appreciated as "nobody's business." But we can't help thinking back to the day when Mack Sennett velved the lumscent glee of them all in this impromptu cheer for the five-dollar raise:

Biograph, Biograph, rah! rah! rah!
Ten dollars, ten dollars, hah! hah! hah!

Wonder what great kid of the future is playing around the Frog Pond today?

Vessie Ferrell is Quite Safe Without Horses

Vessie Ferrell, who plays the role of Sarah Walters in "Out of the Night," at the Arlington, has only one complaint. She has always played leading roles in which she could wear beautiful evening gowns. And the pride of her life has always been her long and beautiful hair. But alas! You should see her now! In order to play the part of Doctor Sarah Walters in "Out of the Night," she had to sacrifice her hair and have it bobbed, and for the first time in her life she had to wear breech trousers, instead of the fluffy dresses she has been noted for. But Miss Ferrell claims she is getting used to the riding costume, in spite of the fact that she has never ridden a horse.

Vessie Ferrell.

Polly Moran is a "Trouper" of Wide Experience

Polly Moran, bustling comedienne in "The Thirteenth Hour" at Loew's Orpheum, was, according to her own statement, born in death valley, brought to civilization by a twenty-mule team, and educated in the school of experience."

She has traveled all over the worldas a comedy star in vaudeville. She started in picture in 1914 with Mack Sennett and appeared in many successes opposite Ben Turpin.

She remained in picture for four years, deserting them for the stage. After a short period in "legitimate," she returned to motion pictures.

Genuine Brass Buttons

The man who found flaws in the blue and gray Civil War uniforms of the "My Maryland" chorus has expressed himself as entirely satisfied with the dozen or more policemen in "The Spider," as every bit of the latter's ragalia is that of real, honest-to-goodness Boston "coppers."

STAGE AND SCREEN

For Reasons of State?

Jack Donahue, he of the slapping slippers in Mr. Ziegfeld's ruckundent "Rosalie," at the Colonial, declares that the best reason for divorce he has heard this year was given to him by a Nevada hotel man, who honestly states, "It helps to keep people in circulation."

CROOK FILM ROLES FOR PHYLLIS

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

LOS ANGELES, CAL., Dec. 31. —One usually may tell how a company regards its stars by the stories purchased for its leading lights. There need be no secret as Phyllis Haver's standing on the De Mille lot. First "Chicago," one of the sensational plays last year, was announced and now they tell me "Tenth Avenue" is to feature Miss Haver in January.

"Tenth Avenue" was on of the popular crook melodramas last year. Miss Haver, former Mack Sennett bathing beauty and now one of the chief home-destroyers in celluloid, will play the role Edna Hibbard created on the stage.

Then, there are two members of the crook household equally important—paying guests of the male gender, to be played by Joseph Schildkraut and Victor Varconi. I was surprised to hear that William DeMille, whose specialty at one time was whimsical, delicate tales, is to direct "Tenth Avenue."

PROBABLY Frank Lloyd's best work was done for First National. Since he directed "The Sea Hawk" much water has passed under the bridge, and not always with a pleasant ripple for Mr. Lloyd.

He has not approached "The Sea Hawk" by a long way, but he knows he can repeat this performance, and so does First National. That's why Watterson Rothacker, of the First National Studios, signed Mr. Lloyd on a long-term contract. He will first direct Corinne Griffith in "The Divine Lady." After that he will make four pictures—two with stars and two of a special nature.

Miss Griffith's return to First National is interesting. She chafed at the bit for months and registered dissatisfaction with all of her First National productions. Then she went to United Artists, and after one picture obtained her release to return to the company whose activities she found so annoying.

There are so few men in the world who wear a monocle gracefully and easily that we can count them on the left hand. Ivan Lebedeff is one who is a close second to Andres De Segurola—Elmbrid's most efficient monocle-wearer.

Mr. Lebedeff was in the diplomatic service as a guard officer in Russia before the Czar was dethroned. He has been in Hollywood for the last six months trying to forget Russia. I am under the impression that he was originally a David Wark Griffith discovery. Then he was signed by the De Mille company without much chance to do more than minor parts.

His New Year, however, promises to start out in a far more auspicious manner, for he will play the male lead in "Walking Back," the role originally assigned to H. B. Warner. I believe the name of the character is Devil, a "nice" bandit.

PADEREWSKI RECITAL

Paderewski, who is returning to America after a season's absence, will visit Boston for a recital, when he will give in Symphony Hall on Sunday afternoon January 15. The great composers of music for his instrument — Beethoven, Schumann, Schubert, Chopin and Liszt—will be generously represented on the program.

HEIFETZ CONCERT

Returning to America after two seasons of concert giving in the old world, Jascha Heifetz will visit Boston once again to give a recital in Symphony Hall on Sunday afternoon, January 8th. The great violinist will be assisted by Isidor Achron.

ARDENT TOILERS IN ART'S BROAD PASTURE

WALTER GILBERT will take the title role in "The Song and Dance Man" at the St. James.

MAY EDISS is still the resolute wife amid the chills of "The Ghost Train" at the Copley.

CHARLES CARVER lends a strong hand in making a hit of "My Maryland." (Shubert.)

BEULAH BONDI is one of the principal mystery-makers in "Cock Robin," now at the Hollis.

Reinhardt Offers to Star Jeanne Eagels Abroad

A signal honor has been accorded Jeanne Eagels, star of "Her Cardboard Lover," which comes to the Plymouth January 9. Max Reinhardt has offered to take her abroad for a continental production, which he shall stage, of "Rain." Miss Eagels' former great success. While Miss Eagels has not as yet accepted the Reinhardt offer has both surprised and delighted her. A friend, commenting on the proposal, has requoted Michael Arlen, who is reported to have said, on landing in New York on his first visit, that he had come to America to see two women; one was the Statue of Liberty and the other Jeanne Eagels.

Jeanne Eagels.

Beth Merrill Started in Worcester Stock Troupe

Beth Merrill, who comes to the Hollis as star of "Hidden," a week from Monday, started her theatrical career in a stock company. Her initial appearance was made in Worcester. She played little girl parts in short frocks one week and the next you might find her in a long, trailing gown of a grand dame. Miss Merrill accepted this engagement in Worcester for experience, as she knew it was necessary to get a foothold on the stage, and she got plenty of it. At the close of the stock engagement she returned to New York and, through a friend of David Belasco, secured an introduction to the noted producer. After a brief interview Miss Merrill was given the part of Kay Beatty in "Ladies of the Evening."

Father Finn, of Paulist Choir, is Bostonian

Father Finn, conductor of the noted Paulist Choristers, who will give their only concert this season in Boston, at Symphony Hall, January the second, is a Bostonian by birth and education. He studied at the Boston Latin School and at the New England Conservatory of Music. He was organist at the Mission Church in Roxbury.

He has probably conducted more choral concerts during the last quarter of a century than any other choral conductor alive.

LOVE HINTS ABOUND IN THEATRE

"There is not a single feature of a play," says Helen Ford, who plays the star role in "Peggy-Ann" at the Wilbur, that can be compared to the love interest. For the fact of the matter is that, of course unconsciously, people go to plays to get tips on love making.

"The audience watches the love scenes on the stage with possible future reference to their own, without really knowing it. That is why actresses have to be students of emotion, and attempt to strike harmoniously on the chords of sentiment.

"In many dramas and comedies, the dramatist has not attempted to portray passion, merely to hint at it. He relies for his effect, upon the keen preception and appreciation of American audiences—and the fact that they are three-quarters made up of women, and if there is one subject they are interested in, it is anything pertaining to the heart.

"A little book which was once published called 'How Men Propose' ran through many editions. Everybody enjoys either watching or making love—and in the theatre one has a glorious chance to see others do it."

Betty Alden in Radio Talk on Clothes

By BETTY ALDEN.
Society Editor of the Boston Evening American.

I enjoyed my twenty minutes on the air last evening, when I talked through the new station WLOE on "Clothes." I devoutly hope that all my listeners enjoyed my talk.

Next week, through the same station, and at the same hour, but on Thursday instead of Friday, I shall be on the air again, telling you other details of feminine Boston's purple and fine linen. It's an interesting task my managing editor, Mr. Edward R. Mahoney, has set for me, to tell the hundreds of radio listeners what Boston maids and matrons wear and how they look as they take their social way through teas and luncheons and dinners and dances.

Mr. Mahoney has some brilliant plans for the new station and its program. He is just overflowing with plans to make it a favorite station with many special features, of which I sincerely hope to be one. We are to have our own broadcasting room, in the Boston Evening American Building, Winthrop square.

It's "our" room and it's "your" room as well.

WLOE is a new station, but it's going to be a big one and an important one. I hope you will listen to me now and then, and now and then let me hear from you in return. A postage stamp on a letter, and Uncle Sam will see that it reaches me.

GREENWICH FLASHING CORRECT TIME TO WORLD

London, Dec. 31 (A.P.).—Greenwich Observatory has begun to flash the correct time to the world through the high power radio station at Rugby. The Greenwich time signals will provide a double check with Eiffel Tower reports from Paris. Ships at sea, geographers and surveyors are expected to benefit especially by the new system. The signals are sent from Greenwich by landline to the Central Telegraph office and thence to Rugby.

RADIO DIALOG — By C. William Rados

We have been accustomed to give each year at this time a resume of the past year in radio. This is all we will give this year, but we give it from the bottom of our hearts.

Many things have happened since 1926. Take Leo Themersin of Russia, who claims to have invented a way of taking music from the air by waving his hands. We don't know where we will take Leo but if we do it might be far, far away.

Since 1926, 7,263 generous people have given radio sets to the home fr the deaf. New stations opened in Chelsea, Medford and Gloucester. The announcer at Harvard square still is his own broadcasting station.

On January 1 1927 the N. B. C. got itself all chained up, and the country was set for broadcasting on a large scale. Since then we have had Eskimos, ground gripers and other lubberdashery on the air.

Another chain went into active service last Fall, with resulting opening up of great stores of classical music to the vast audiences.

A third chain expects to start soon.

Last Fall occurred something which never before was seen in the history of the earth. Due to radio the Dempsey-Tunney fight was brought into millions of homes in a clean, acceptable manner. That's a fact, and is a feather in the radio cap. People who had unfavorable views of prize fighting changed them after this broadcast.

Tripping back over the memory we remember how a national radio audition picked over 50,000 amateur stagers to finally select the best ten. We will hear from one or more of these people some day.

The Federal Radio Commission was formed last February, and it put radio on a rational, orderly basis. The radio industry now has a head to which it looks for recognized leadership and guidance.

An International Radio Conference met in Washington and signed a new radio treaty when the supply of liquor gave out in the embassies.

Atwater Kent brought out a new model cabinet radio which is a distinct convenience. Dealers everywhere report a banner year for lamp socket sets. The patent squabbling was settled when about thirty concerns agreed to be nice boys and behave.

During the year program presentation has risen to such heights that 55 national manufacturers spent $6,000,000 for presentation. The bill for artists was $2,000,000 additional, but the artists read like a directory of "Who's Who" in entertainment, education and the stage. Twenty thousand miles of wire telephone have been utilized in connecting stations for national programs, while Big Brother must have ridden that much around to fairs and dinners.

It was in 1927 that the first regular coast to coast broadcasts occurred on a reliable basis. It was from Gulf Oil to Canada Dry and Atlantic Sugar to Pacific Tea.

W. T. GRANT COMPANY BUYS TALBOT LEASE

The purchase of the lease held by the Talbot Company for the Marlboro Building, No. 295-303 Washington street, by the W. T. Grant Company, which will open one of its largest stores at that location, was the result of four years' negotiations, it was stated today.

Through the personal relations of William T. Grant, Clayton E. Freeman and Fred A. Powdrell of the W. T. Grant Company with George N. Talbot, the transfer of the lease was accomplished.

The Grant Company, which is a New England concern, has 155 stores east of the Rockies, 76 being in New England and 36 in Greater Boston.

Jordan Marsh Company

1851 ANNOUNCING OUR 1928

SEVENTY-SEVENTH BIRTHDAY SALE

Equaling in every way the GREAT BIRTHDAY SALES of the past two years

two years ago—

Jordan Marsh Company set a new standard for values . . . . . in its great Diamond Jubilee Sale, celebrating seventy-five years of prosperity and growth.

last year—

Jordan Marsh Company surpassed this goal in its amazing Birthday Sale of Progress. Values were almost unbelievable . . . . . New England responded in a way that spoke volumes of public confidence.

this year—

Jordan Marsh Company promises a Seventy-Seventh Birthday Sale that will equal last year's record . . . . in values . . . . . in proportions.

because—

Jordan Marsh Company has such magnitude of buying power . . . . such a weight of influence in the wholesale markets of the world . . . .

—it is possible once a year to achieve a Birthday Month of outstanding values —and yet to give every day in the year such values as to make it New England's greatest store after seventy-seven years of leadership.

{ eleven months of sound values—every day in the year—a twelfth month of values-plus—every day in the month. }

ROBERTI HAS FINE FUTURE

Italian Champ, by His Win Over Gagnon, Proved He Has the Makings

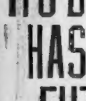
By JACK CONWAY

ROBERTO ROBERTI will go a long ways along the fistic trail if he is not rushed into the first flight of heavyweights until he has gained more experience. He proved this when he defeated Jack Gagnon in a ten-round bout at the Argonne A. A.'s heavyweight show at Mechanics Building.

With Doc Bagley, the man responsible for a great deal of the success gained by Gene Tunney, directing the youthful Italian sensation, it is unlikely that Roberti will be ever matched.



Jack Conway

Roberti scored two knockdowns in the second session, a right hand sock to the temple dropped Gagnon to the canvas. The New Bedford warrior got up without taking any of the benefit of the count. A left to the body toppled Gagnon for a count of eight in the eighth frame.

It was a hard, gruelling fight all the way. Gagnon came back strong after each knockdown.

It looked as though Jack was going to have hard sledding after he went down in the eighth frame. When he got up, he carried the battle to Roberti for the remainder of the session, held his own in the ninth and was out front in the tenth chapter.

Roberti's big margin from the first to the eighth session was what gave him the decision.

Gagnon showed well in the first, third, fifth and tenth frames when he had the margin.

Roberti carried the second, fourth, sixth, seventh and eighth chapters. In these sessions, he had a decided edge on Gagnon. The tenth was even.

ROBERTI shapes up well in the ring. Standing six feet three inches in height and weighing 200 pounds, he is a physical giant. He punches straight and with terrific force.

Roberti is cool under fire and handles himself well when stung by enemy fire.

Gagnon scored with some crushing left hooks which would have tipped over the average run of heavyweights. Roberti took the punches well and when the opportunity presented itself did a little heavy execution himself.

Humbert J. Fugazy, Rickard's New York rival, accompanied by Abe Yaeger, his energetic secretary, was at the ringside. Fugazy brought Roberti to this country from Italy and has been responsible for much of his success in the ring.

EDDIE CALLAHAN of Arlington

continued his run of victories when he knocked out Dan Bright of, England in three rounds. Callahan continues to improve with each start and should soon be in the main bout class.

Morgan Gardner of Lowell outpointed Babe Wilson of Charlestown in a four round event.

Al Schooner of Hartford outpunched Sammy Hunter of Pittsburgh in another four session event.

Jim Dwyer of Athol stopped Big Boy Mack of Charlestown in two frames, while Abe Kaplan kayoed Joe Domingues in a couple of heats.

ROCKY STONE had his hour of triumph when he knocked out Hagen Hassen of Peabody in three sessions. A left hook to the chin was Rocky's sleep powder.

Jack Allen got out of practice with the battlers a couple of times and was fortunate he, too, wasn't socked out of the picture.

It was one of the best fighting shows in Boston this year and was witnessed by 7,000 fans.

STEELED TO WIN TODAY'S GAME

A TRIO OF BETHLEHEM STARS WHO WILL FACE THE WOODSIES At Walpole street in a game that will practi cally decide the winners of the first half of the American Soccer League. Bethlehem is leading the Hub eleven by a full game with but two more games to play after today's tilt. A victory for the Woodsies in today's contest will put them on even terms with their opponents. The above trio are chiefly responsible for the lead that Bethlehem holds. Left to right, Archie Stark, Jimmy Grainger and Matt Goldie.

MALCEWICZ TO MEET HANSEN

Charley Hansen, Swedish champion wrestler, and Panther Joe Malcewicz have been matched for the main event in the weekly wrestling show up at the Grand Opera House Thursday night.

Hansen seems extra good this year and it is hard to find a pair of boys more evenly matched than this pair.

The boys both know their stuff about as well as any two men in the game today.

Malcewicz, like Hansen, depends on one hold, the reverse flying mare to win, and once he puts it over it is usually curtains for the other fellow. However, both boys have almost every thing known to the wrestling game.

Big Stan Stasiak, far from being discouraged by his defeat at the hands of George McLeod, will be again back in the harness, wrestling it out with his Polish countryman Joe Rogacki. This match will be for one fall.

Joe Bull Komar will meet Tommy Drnak, the champion of the Netherlands.

Yale Five Gets Real Test Tonight

New York, Dec. 31 (A.P.).—Formal opening of the Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball League season tonight finds the Yale quintet opposing the University of Pennsylvania at the Palestra in Philadelphia.

Of the six teams in the league, Dartmouth, defending champion, has been favored to retain the laurels won in the last campaign. Penn's outfit was crippled by the loss of four members from last year's team in addition to two of its leading players, Monty Chapman, centre, and Bill Lewis, guard, who are out under a faculty ban.

The game tonight at Philadelphia is expected to indicate just what strength the Yale five possesses. Early season contests with lighter competitors showed Yale to be a formidable opponent.

TEX RICKARD AFTER ACE HUDKINS-DUNDEE BOUT

New York, Dec. 31 (I.N.S.)—As a result of the reinstatement of Ace Hudkins, Nebraska welterweight, by the New York Boxing Commission, Promoter Tex Rickard hopes to match Hudkins with Joe Dundee, the champion, in a title bout here.

Dundee is still under suspension here because of the collapse of his scheduled bout with Hudkins in California and the ban must be lifted before the match can be staged in New York.

Top Tie for Woodsies If They Win Today

By BILL McAULEY

The Woodsies' chances of landing the first half of the American Soccer League race will depend on today's game with the league leading Bethlehem eleven, which they meet at Walpole street.

The Steelworkers are leading the Hub eleven by two points, and should the Blue and Gold romp home with a victory the teams will be tied, with each having two more games to play.

Today's tilt between the two leading teams of the country is the talk of the soccer world, and the result will be sought by every fan throughout the East.

Locally, interest is at a high pitch, and the fans can hardly wait for game time, and the majority of them are willing to give odds that the Woodsies will triumph over the highly rated Pennsylvania eleven.

Bethlehem, acknowledged the smoothest working aggregation in the game today, will be opposed by a Hub team that, while not as smooth, is much faster and which possesses a defense second to none.

HAVE PLAYED THE GAME.

The elevens have met once already this season, the game which was played at Bethlehem ending in a tie, and the Hub players feel confident that they can outpoint them on the home pitch.

With Edwards in goal and Meekin and Will Reid as fullbacks, Bethlehem has a strong last line in defense. Ably assisting them in the halback line are Don Reid, Carnihan and McGregor. This intermediate trio are marked with class and are just as capable at helping the attack when not defending.

Tim Frost Hsa, led by Stark in the center, has Gillespie and Japp on the right wing and Grainger and Goldie on the left. This quintet forms a combination that is given most of the credit for the position of their club today and expects rate them on a par with any forward line which ever played here.

BOSTON'S FULL POWER STARTS.

The Woodsies will be at full strength, Manager Jimmy McDonald declaring that every man fit for the fray, Davidson will be the choice for goal with Battles and McArthur as fullbacks.

McIntyre, Priestly and Bobby Ballantyne will compose the half back line and the attack will ce McNab and Nilsen on the right wing, Johnny Ballantyne and Fleming on the left and Bobby Blair in the center

Blair, leading scorer of the Hub eleven, will be married in the evening after the game and his teammates are planning on making the event a double celebration. Dick Rose of New Bedford will referee the contest with A. Hart and T. Ritchie, both of Quincy, assisting him on the lines.

KING SOLOMON IS HARD HITTER

Two heavy punchers, Ernie Schaaf of Dorchester and King Solomon of Panama, will feature the first boxing show of the New Year and head the all-heavyweight card of the Suffolk A. A., in the Arena one week from Monday night.

It may be a surprise to many when they learn that Solomon, among the fistic fraternity, is considered one of the hardest punching heavyweights in the world. Boston well remembers the night he flattened Jim Maloney with a single right to the chin, as a hand when Maloney was considered the logical successor to Jack Dempsey as heavyweight champion of the world.

Jack Sharkey added his bit of evidence. "Solomon a puncher? I should say he is," said Jack. "The two fights I had with him were among my half dozen hardest fights. He stung me in our first fight, with the only right hand shot he got at my chin."

Only a few weeks ago, Solomon demonstrated once again that, given a free shot at any man's chin, that man will crumple. In a Philadelphia ring, he knocked out Ray Neuman. Tiger Flowers could not do it at the Crosscup-Fiahon show at Braves Field, and neither Jack Dempsey nor Gene Tunney, both of whom Neuman has fought, could knock him to the floor.

B. C. SIX HOLDS DORCHESTER TO TIE

Latin, English, Jamaica and Brighton were victors in the Morning Glory games played at the Arena this morning.

Dorchester and B. C. High fought to a 1—1 draw and South Boston and Commerce battled to a 2—2 deadlock in the other games.

B. C. pulled the surprise of the morning when they outplayed the classy Dorchester sextet for two periods. The Eaglets scored a goal in the first period which Referee Noonan ruled offside. In the second period Walter Kiley broke loose on a solo dash which terminated with the puck landing in the Red and Black draperies. Dorchesters goal was of a lucky sort. Paul Toohey scored from centre ice, the puck catching Goalie Tansey off his guard.

Buddy Hugher, brilliant English High centre, practically won the game for his sextet single handed. Hughes despite a constant rifling from the fans, scored both goals for the Blue and Blue while Walsh caged Hyde Park's solitary marker.

Boston Latin strengthened its lead in the league standing by a 2 to 1 win over the East Boston team. Jimmy Tracey scored two goals for the Purple while Crimbeu gets credit for the other goal. Malano scored for the Noddle Islanders.

Jamaica Plain, led by Captain Heggie, outskated Mechanic Arts and pinned a 2 to 0 defeat on the Engineers. Heggie scored in the first period on a pass from McCarthy while Billie Condon caged the other goal.

Brighton had an easy time winning over Trade School. In fact Taylor, in the Brighton sanctuary, had only three saves throughout the game, while his teammates scored two goals.

AMATEURS BATTLE FOR PLACE ON HONOR TEAM

With the approaching interclty boxing struggle carded for January 23 at the Boston Arena, much interest is being exhibited by followers of the simon pures in tonight's card of bouts at the St. Joseph's T. A. S. to be held at Commercial Hall, Dowden square.

Tonight's event will serve as the first elimination tournament which will result in the selection of the Boston team of boxers which will oppose the invaders in the big arena show. Only three tournaments will be conducted in this elimination series and local purse hawks are anxious to win a place on the team no doubt will participate in all the affairs.

NAVY TRACK TEAM TO HAVE OUTDOOR RUNNING TRACK

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 31.—Work has begun at the Naval Academy on the construction of a cinder track, a feature of which will be that it is an outdoor track and can be utilized not in use. The track will be ten laps to the mile.

The track is to be placed to the east of the gymnasium but as that structure is used for football purposes the track was constructed with the take-down feature. The Naval Academy has never had a track of any kind and Earl Thomson, the track coach, expects good results from its use.

New England Is Strong in Middle Distance Men for Olympics

By JOE CASHMAN

Neither Uncle Sam nor New England will be without other points in the 800 and 1,500 metre runs than those that Lloyd Hahn, B. A. A., expects to garner by two first places.

Right here in New England there are several star athletes who are not only willing, but anxious, to make the United States Olympic team in those events and compete for Uncle Sam at Amsterdam next Summer.

These boys are all training and will use the Winter indoor meets and the Spring college games as stepping stones to ultimate success in the trials for the team next June.

Three stars from this section for the 800 metre run which is the equivalent of our half mile are: George Lermond, George Leness and Luke McCloskey.

In the longer metred run, approximately the same as our mile distance, New England will fall back upon Willard Tibbets, Normi Folsom and Allison Wills.

Both events, of course, will include among their four American entrants, Floyd Hahn. The New England boys are in the fight for the other vacant positions only Hahn seems sure to land a berth right now.

G. LERMOND IN TWO EVENTS.

George Lermond, the better known of the athletic brothers from the North Shore, is the former Boston College two mile runner who shot into national prominence in his final two years of college track.

George, year ago, was appointed by Congressman Jimmy Gallivan of South Boston, to West Point. Since going to the military academy, George has switched his events and turned his attention entirely to the mile and six half mile.

He is by far the best that the Cadets have in those two events and, in addition to that, he has set his mind on another Olympic trip.

Lermond was unknown in his first two years at Boston College. Toward the end of his sophomore year Lermond entered an interclass meet and almost ran the B. C. registers into the ground, faltering only near the finish.

Jack Ryder immediately took him in hand and by the following Winter, the veteran foil fielded runner ready to compete with the best on the indoor tracks. Lermond's timing and records do not need recalling to New England track followers.

MCCLOSKEY IS FAST.

He was chosen for the last Olympic team, but did not have very much to say. This year, George will be in the shorter runs and perhaps will fare much better.

As a result of Lermond's trip to Paris, Boston College gained a track star, Frank Hussey, George's roommate, just as Tony Comerford's pal, in the United States Marines, Chuck Darling, also came to the college on the Heights, following his association with Boston College men.

Another Boston College boy who may give them a real run for honors is Luke McCloskey of Brighton, former captain of the Eagles. Luke ran on the Boston College championship two-mile relay team and scored countless points for the Eagles in the indoor and college meets for three years.

The time of D. G. A. Lowe, winner of the 800 metre run in the Paris Olympics, was 1:52 3-5 seconds. Both McCloskey and George Leness, the third New Englander, have made the time encountered to have a real chance of making the team.

Leness, of Massachusetts Institute of Technology star middle distance runner, George is now working in the Navy and practising and competing for the New York A. C. Leness has almost met defeat on the Eagles' track and field will carry him to many an uphill victory between now and trial time next June.

TIBBETS BEST TWO MILER.

Willard Tibbets, the former Hanford track captain comes from South Boston, as fans know, and runs with all the fighting courage that is known as the Yeo-mite, and on his times over the shorter event has a splendid chance to come through.

Folsom is a Maine prep school star who, not so very long ago, won the Maine A. A. U. indoor and outdoor Interscholastics. He has been dubbed "Normi" by the boys in the Iron Tree Birds. Folsom is now a student at Georgetown University and is training regularly under the direction of Jack O'Reilly, veteran Hilltopper coach.

Folsom has touched 4:20 in competition in Maine for the distance, and the boys who are home from college tell us that he is in better condition say that he has gone under that in his time trials on the Georgetown track.

"Allie" Wills, the former Bates College runner, might have made this grade, but Wills, with a show of real foresight, decided to go to graduate school and is devoting a full day to studies. He still enters and runs for running as a game, merely as a diversion.

The next article on this series will appear in tomorrow's Sunday Advertiser.

GOLF PROS TO PLAY ON COAST

Los Angeles, Dec. 31.—A new golfing organization, the principal aim of which is to co-operate with cities desiring to hold Winter tournaments, came into existence here when leading professional linksmen of the country organized the Association of Tournament Golfers.

Tommy Armour of Washington, national open champion, was elected president, and Hal Sharkay Newark, N. J., golf writer, was made secretary-treasurer and manager

Sharkey, it was announced will start immediately the work of sanctioning dates for a tour by a group of noted golfers during the 1928-29 season beginning in November and ending in April.

A number of other officers were elected, including regional vice-presidents; Al Espinosa, for Chicago; Nell Christian of Yakima, Wash., for the Pacific Northwest; Charley Guest of Los Angeles, for Southern California; Dewey Longworth of San Francisco, for Northern California, and John Bredemus of San Antonio, for Texas. ### Vierkotter Got $1,500 of $30,000 Prize

Paris, Dec. 31 (A.P.).—Ernest Vierkotter, the Cologne baker, English Channel swimmer and winner of the Lake Ontario marathon at Toronto has an ambition to become a "master" and swing the little baton of an orchestra leader, when he gets enough money.

"Didn't you bring back $30,000 from Toronto; that is was the amount of its first prize, wasn't it?"

"Do you know how much money I brought back in Germany? Six thousand gold marks, $1,500," replied Vierkotter. "Too much expense, too much expense," he wailed.

GOAL SCORING BASIS TO DECIDE SOCCER WINNER

Bethlehem, Penn., Dec. 31.—Bethlehem Steel Soccer Club will meet the New York Nationals in the first round of the American Soccer League Cup competition for the H. L. Lewis trophy as the result of the pairings made by the league.

The plan in vogue in the American Cup competition in previous seasons was slightly altered in that the winner of each round will be decided on a goal scoring basis. Previously this plan existed only in the semi-final and final rounds.

Most important was the pairing for the first round of the cup competition and that with the Bethlehem-Nationals game scheduled for the second half of the American Soccer League season.

CASH IS VOTED TO SCHOOLBOY STADIUM

at a luncheon given by Mayor Nichols, the long speech of Councillor Child nearly killed the stadium.

The attempted filibuster, the first in two years, came when Councillor John L. Fitzgerald of Ward 2 moved that the body take up the appropriation of $56,844.63 to be expended under the direction of the Park Department for maintenance and improvement of the Back Bay Fens. Although phrased this way, the order actually meant the money was to be used for the erection of the Stadium.

Two weeks ago the Council passed the order and then reconsidered, when several Councillors, including Henry Parkman, Jr., nephew of George F. Parkman, who left the $8,900,000 fund to the city, raised the question as to whether the money could be used legally for playgrounds.

Councillor Parkman declared at that time he did not believe his uncle intended the fund to be used in that way. A telegram from him was read at today's session, stating he hoped the measure would be defeated.

Councillor Guild upheld the illegal triangle, asking the council also to defeat the order, refusing to relinquish the floor for 45 minutes. Councillor Fitzgerald then said that while he intended to vote for the measure, he had grave doubts as to its legality. He also said he understood the matter was to be tested in court.

ARENA TRACK SATISFIES

A sigh of relief comes from the track camps of Harvard, Dartmouth and Cornell today at the news that their annual meet will be transferred to the Arena, February 25, instead of the Commonwealth Armory as previously planned.

For the past fortnight Harvard officials have been besieged with telegrams from their rivals demanding that the annual meet be shifted from the Armory if at all possible.

At Harvard this move by Directors Bingham, Berry and Heneage is more than felt. Caretaker Dennis Ehrlich was on the verge of erecting the stands and track when the decision was reached.

It is only meet that Enright and his assistants would be called upon to build a huge track, but also to erect stands to seat the huge turnout which yearly witnesses this meet.

Not only from a financial outlook but from the track side is the news welcomed. Harvard trackmen hold dubolus opinions of the possibilities of erecting a suitable track at the indoor polo field.

The runners undoubtedly would be subject to dangerous running conditions and would not be able to perform at the best of their ability.

University Club to Enter Rowing

From the number of former collegiate rowing stars that have already signed up for the eight-oar crew which is to be entered in the Olympic trials next Spring by the University Rowing Club of Cambridge, prospects for a first-class crew and a real place for the Hub on the Olympic team are assured.

Included among the stellar performers who have already been pledged to the colors of Alan Lindley, stroke of the Yale Olympic crew of two years ago, will probably occupy the same place in the Cambridge shell; Orland Saunders, another Yale oarsman; "Duke" Farnham, formerly of the Harvard crew; Donavan, of the Technology crew which was in the eight-oared on the Tech Olympic crew a couple of seasons ago.

Ellis Ryan, star of the unbeaten Kent School crew, may also be a member of the eight.

Frank Cavanaugh, coach at Fordham, said he felt that the Army had "a vast [illegible] navy because of the age limit which permitted West Point to get older and experienced players. He understood Navy was protesting against playing teams [illegible] of [illegible] football stars.

Inside Golf

By Chester Horton

Discussing design phases of golf course layouts reminds me again of the one hole in this country which must forever stick in my mind as the best golf hole ever designed. It was created by Max Behr and it should make him famous. I think a thousand years from today this is his amazing short hole [illegible] the remarkable [illegible] side course near Los Angeles—the sixth. It is 80 yards long. Think of it! But let's see you shoot it in par! When he created this shot he delivered a service for the lakeside members for which some of them [illegible] at times no doubt and [illegible] in oil, but in designing [illegible] full shot Max Behr [illegible] the way to [illegible] better golfers. The hole represents design at its very best because a thousand players can play through there and 999 of them will be better golfers for it. The hole is stiff beyond all reasonable expectations, but from every possible angle it represents the best single instance of golf design that exists today.

Man's Spirit Shall Soar

The thought of a new year thrills us through and through. What may be, stands like a castle in the air, beautiful, sublime, tinted with the golden light of possibilities. Each January 1 brings visions to the mind of great things that could be reared by and for mankind, and then 12 months, like giants, come stalking up the hill to batter at the walls of holy cities created by our souls.

Shall this year be the same and see destruction to the spirit's fondest hopes? Let us say NO to pessimists who foretell the same old sordid round of human drudgery, the same degraded deeds and selfish usury. Let us look deeper into history and prophesy a mighty change about to break upon an expectant world.

The late Charles P. Steinmetz, probably the leading electrical engineer of his times, has been quoted as having said just before he died, that the greatest discovery is to be made along spiritual lines. "Some day," he declared, "people will learn that material things do not bring happiness and are of little use in making men and women creative and powerful. It is now for the scientists of the world to turn their laboratories over to the study of God and Prayer and the spiritual forces which as yet have hardly been scratched. When this day comes," declared Steinmetz, "the world will see more advancement in one generation than it has seen in the past four."

The great engineer saw clearly and his vision was surely true. He had watched mechanical science come, after centuries of painfully slow progress, to mountain slopes where gradual rise took a sudden leap into the skies of achievement. He saw science of man's physical being running almost parallel with mechanical science and then before he died he had the vision of the spiritual becoming the absorbing interest of the best minds of the earth. A realm "scarcely scratched," he claimed, but soon, possibly, to assume a prominence and upward movement that would be startling in its tremendous results in creating human beings little less than gods, able to encompass in their minds a universal brotherhood of all mankind.

Shall we begin in 1928?

The New Year Bells

For those who have ears to listen the bells tonight will send out into the midnight air a harmony of hope and faith and prophecy of better days to come.

Lines taken from the poet Tennyson's "In Memoriam."

Ring out, wild bells, to the wild sky,
Ring out the old, ring in the new,
Ring out the slowly dying cause,
Ring in the nobler modes of life.
Ring out the want, the care, the sin.
Ring out false pride in place and blood.
Ring in the love of truth and right,
Ring in the common love of good.
Ring out old shapes of foul disease,
Ring out the narrowing lust of gold,
Ring out a thousand wars of old,
Ring in a thousand years of peace.
Ring out the darkness of the land,
Ring in the Christ that is to be.

LARGE AND SMALL HUB CHURCHES TO EXCHANGE PASTORS

Next Sunday, January 8, has been set aside in Greater Boston as Interdenominational Exchange Sunday and will see many prominent clergymen in pulpits of another denomination than their own. Miles, as often a leader in religious co-operation, has added this year a unique feature to Exchange Sunday. Ministers of the large churches in the central part of the city will exchange with pastors of smaller and outlying churches. The Rev. H. H. Crane, for instance, with a parish of ... will exchange with the Rev C ... Dunn of the Mystic Side Congregational Church, with 236 members, and the Rev. William Quay Rossell, of the First Baptist Church with a membership of 1500, will exchange with the Rev. Lloyd A. Gustafson of the Linden Congregational of 168 members.

In the town of Watertown six clergymen have had their names shuffled in a hat and have drawn blindfolded, as it were, the pulpits where they are to deliver their sermons.

The Greater Boston Federation of Churches has for several years been interested in promoting good fellowship between all denominations by setting aside one day of the year for a general exchange of an interdenominational character.

FATHER FINN AT SYMPHONY WITH CHORUS

Father Finn and his celebrated Paulist Choristers will give their only Boston concert at Symphony Hall next Monday evening. The program this year will consist of classical choir selections as well as the usual songs from the modern masters. One of the principal features will be the appearance of Father Finn at the organ, in which he will interpret many favorite selections from the old masters as well as his own compositions.

Other soloists will be Master Joseph Laderoute, a little French boy of thirteen years, said to have the purest tones of any boy chorister in the country. Master Laderoute already has appeared in many of the cities of the West and has been hailed as the Little Galli Curci. Master James Mahoney, a former Boston boy, Donald Maguire of Troy, New York, are other boy soloists of equal note. The work of Father Finn and his famous boy choristers is no introduction to music lovers in New England. The Choristers have appeared in Boston in many years in the past and have always been accorded the finest reception.

Formerly a curate at the Mission Church, Roxbury, Father Finn conceived the idea of creating a boy choir the equal of any in the world. Studying abroad under the greatest choir masters Father Finn has realized his ambition.

In the coming concert at Symphony Hall a monster celebration has been planned by his many former parishioners and friends. Indications point to the same immense crowd that has always attended him on his annual appearance to his home town.

Rev. Wolcott Cutler

Of St. John's Episcopal Church, Charlestown. Extract from tomorrow's sermon.

Text: Proverbs XII: 2, "And men never go unpunished." But all is well with the good. "What arrant ... makes ... the man of the street, "What sickly sentimentalism; what dangerous social doctrines." And ... grant offenders frequently go ... free! ... Again the text offends the thoughtless men, when it asserts that "All is well with the good." Ah no, even downpressed ... dicted persecution, nakedness and the sword for such as dare to ... better than their fellows ... calamity is what ultimately overtakes goodness in this present world.

New Year's resolutions seek to order life more nearly according to the principles of individual and social welfare. "End men never go unpunished" says the writer of Proverbs—as if many of our most successful politicos and financial leaders had not filled their pockets with ill gotten gold.

Here is the real question to be decided: Which is preferable, to be popular and powerful, or to be in a class with the prophet Jeremiah, who was placed in a filthy cistern for his goodness? Yet, unless a man really prefers compensations greater than all that life affords, his Christianity is but a vain thing, and our text is indeed a snare and a delusion.

'The Constant Flame,' the Story of Emily Day of Dedham Town

—By WINNIFRED VAN DUZER—

CHAPTER 17

KITTEN came in late that evening. Nearly 9 o'clock—too late for her to say, lightly as usually she did, that she "just been down the street."

Many times Emily had gone out to the road, looking anxiously up and down; many times she glanced at the telephone; once she picked up the receiver, but put it back.

Who could give her any help in this? Not even Agnes who sat rocking placidly, ready to begin another long story of her early years with Steve.

When they came to the dinner table—white linen had replaced the red check but Agnes still cooked potatoes in their jackets and put the coffee-pot beside her plate—Emily glanced at her sister's vacant place but said nothing. Her mother didn't seem to notice it.

What, Emily asked herself, would Muz have done when she was Kitten's age—she was working then, but that made no difference—if she had gone out when she pleased and come in any time with no explanation?

And it wasn't only Muz who had changed; Dedham was different. One saw young kids like Kitten and Dottie Brent roaming the street at night, saying saucy, reckless things to the boys who hailed them from the corners.

Kitten had been well reared; she knew the difference between right and wrong. But she always was a-tingle for excitement. What had amused Emily, the gorgeous game of "Just Pretend" bored her; she was practical and resourceful.

Why Emily worried continually about her sister she didn't know. But sometimes a strange uneasiness charged through her when she saw Kitten starting away down the street, bright head nodding, green dress—it always was green—swirling about the little figure.

Almost a sense of hovering destiny it was, like that which had crept upon her when she learned both Kent and Marty, each touching upon her life as lines in a triangle, would be brought together in a common profession.

She tried to fight it off, but the feeling kept coming back; a sort of vague premonition that Kitten was headed for tragedy.

Now when the clock struck nine and Emily felt she must say something to Agnes, she heard a cautious step on the porch. Kitten slid through the door and started up the stairs, making almost no sound at all.

But when Emily called her from the living room she came in quickly enough, flashed a glance about and slumped in a chair.

"I've been terribly worried, dear. Where were you?"

The yellow eyes narrowed, gleamed under the long lashes. "Who wants to know, Snoopy? Well, I was out with Dottie."

"But I saw Dottie come home an hour ago. Kitten—"

"Oh, all right! I was with Flossie Gaines then."

"I've asked you not to go with Flossie Gaines. And you promised."

Kitten turned to Agnes with the air of a beaten child. "Make her stop, Muz. What's she always got to pin on me for, anyway? Make her stop, can't you?"

Kitten continually complained about the difference in their wardrobes. And now she was asking her mother to spend money she couldn't afford for one of the elaborate gowns she so admired.

"Can I, Muz? Honestly I never give anything. I'm always humiliated."

"Why, I don't see how we can manage, baby. Unless Emmy—" She looked a question at her elder daughter.

She met her mother's eyes and knew the hurt that would go through them if she refused. She had resolved never to cause that hurt.

"All right," she said. "I'll get it for her." Meekly, trying to feel she was doing right.

She went to the bank the next day and wrote the slip. Her account was small and this took just half of it.

It was on the evening the society column said Kent was expected home for a visit that Marty came to see her.

She was sitting in the porch swing, wondering about Kent. Was he changed much now after these years he had spent away from Dedham? Would he be the same laughing, clear-eyed boy who had dropped funny little notes on her desk at school and called her "kid," waiting for her by the elm tree?

She hadn't changed much, she believed. But would he know her at once?

Would she see him while he was home? Oh—going along the road come face to face with him—with Kent . . .

The thought of that set her heart pounding; she had to wait a moment before she could speak to Marty, walking up the steps.

He sat down beside her and lighted a cigarette; that burned out and two others before he spoke.

Then, "Better cut out that crowd down at Great View."

Emily laughed, though there stirred in her something of the old fear and dislike she had felt for him in their school days. He was not openly aggressive as he had been once. But the polish he had been acquiring was thin as yet; she had no wish to scratch through it.

"You sort of like the athletic field yourself, Marty. I see you with Avis Rossiter now and then."

"That's something else. I don't want you picking up loose ideas."

"Maybe you'll tell me," she cried. "What right you have to say such a thing? What right you have to give me orders?"

"Because," he answered calmly. "I'm going to marry you some day."

She jumped up and faced him, everything—even her love for Agnes—forgotten. "You! You come here and say this? You dare? Oh, go now! I never want to see you again. You understand? I never want to see you again."

He got up in a leisurely manner, passed her and looked around with a smile. "Yes, you do, Em. I'll be back.

"And don't forget what I said. I'm going to marry you some day!"

'Sally's Shoulders'; She Finds Out What John Nye's Smile Meant

By BEATRICE BURTON

CHAPTER XL.

THE bright Sunday seemed very dark to Sally, as she left Aunt Emily's house and started for home.

She had no idea what to do now—or where to go for the money that Beau must have before he started for the bank the next morning.

She ransacked her brains, but with no result.

"I've asked Mr. Peevey once for money, so there's no use in going to him again," she thought, mentally crossing him off her list.

"And I don't know where my father is," she went on thinking, her hopelessness growing with every step she took along the wide roadway. For Mr. Jerome traveled for a factory and it was almost impossible to reach him in a hurry.

After the bank opened the next morning, Beau would be in terrible danger. He was even now, as far as that went. Sally knew that.

"I've just got to get one thousand dollars, and I've got to get it today," she told herself.

But beyond that point her mind was a blank.

And then it seemed to her that the thought came to her [illegible] thought of John Nye. She would go to him and tell him that she was in dreadful trouble and needed a thousand dollars—and he would give it to her.

It seemed a certainty to her, then, that he would do it. It seemed as if some inner voice told her so, and she [illegible] shadow of doubt in her heart [illegible]

"Thank you. I will," breathed Sally, her voice full of relief.

In two minutes Sally was speeding downtown in a taxicab.

"He's not like that!" Sally broke in. "And anyway, I'm not going to tell him that I want the money for you, Beau. Just trust me this once. [illegible] And promise me that you won't run away until I get the money."

"I'll give you an hour," Beau said. [illegible]

Don't Fool Yourself With Day Dreams, Says Dr. Reed

By Chas. A. L. Reed, M. D., Former President of the American Medical Association.

YOU, if a day-dreamer—and all of us grown-ups have more or less of that tendency—are liable to build up a state of affairs that has no foundation in fact. When you do this and act upon the result you put yourself at the mercy of mere phantasy.

But there are phantasies and phantasies.

The rule that phantasy should have no part in grown-up life is probably a good one. We should be people of facts, not fiction, of action, not dreams.

There is, however, an important exception. That is constructive phantasy.

Two tests for whether a day-dream is harmful or useful are: "Does it lead to anything?" "Is it something I can make?" "Does it belong to the past, or am I prepared to try and realize it in the [illegible]"

A phantasy of this kind [illegible] can be turned into an ambition [illegible] side. No one knows whence they come. Shakespeare did not know how he wrote, or Michelangelo or Beethoven how he made all other artists second rate. "God, what genius I had when I wrote that," an able writer said, reading one of his own works, after genius had left him. And Nietsche, old, feeble minded, living under the protection of his kind-hearted sister, said when some book was mentioned: "Book, I also have written a book." His books had changed the mental attitude of a great nation, and they still influence the world. He did not know how he wrote them and later did not even know he had written them.

If you have loose ends in business, or conscience, fix them. You may not be here long. Professor Pav, French astrologer, says the constellation Leo will explode in 1928, multitudes of stars will smash, one big piece will hit this earth. Most of us, not all, will be wiped out. A better civilization will follow.

The Professor reads all that in Bible prophecies and in the Pyramids. Our position in the solar system will change. Luckily, Professor Pav may be mistaken. Once such a prophecy would have worried many. Before the year 1000, which seemed a good round number for an earthly wind up, thousands actually went into high mountains to be close to the sky at the last minute. Some sold their lands, far below value, that they might give the money to religious works, and acquire merit, at the last minute. They felt foolish when they walked down hill again, nothing having happened.

Men developed iron, then steel, seeking better weapons for killing each other. Now iron and steel build houses, do peace work of all kinds; war hastened development of flying machines, and of huge tanks, carrying heavy guns over rough ground.

Britain uses flying machines now to drop food in scores of snow bound villages, while war tanks plough roads through banks of snow that old ploughs could not conquer.

Nations are secretly—or openly developing deadly gases to suffocate great cities in future wars. Some day those gases will rid the world of rats, mice, ground squirrels, that carry bubonic plague, and other enemies of men, including perhaps deadly, invisible germs of disease.

This is positively the last day for good resolutions. Those that break several of them tonight, greeting the New Year, need not expect to mend them during 1928.

Secretary Mellon, asking Congress not to hurry about tax reduction laws, says March 15 will be soon enough to estimate the real surplus, and warns against cutting taxes by more than $225,000,000. Would it not be wise to take the advice of the man who manages the public purse and reduces the public debt? Passengers, crossing, would take the advice of a ship captain. Mr Mellon has been a good financial captain.

In New Zealand, deer multiply rapidly and threaten agriculture. It is planned to ship 100,000 deer carcasses to America every year. That will change the New Zealand farmers' problem into one for American farmers. More competition for cattlemen, but not enough to hurt, and Americans are glad to be of use to their New Zealand and Australian friends, "our kinds of people," as our soldiers that met them in Europe say.

Martha Lee Broadcasts New Year Ideas

Martha Lee Radio Chat as broadcast from Station WLOE.

THIS is the day that most of us do a little mental sonse cleaning with the firm intention of starting the New Year on a clean sheet.

Looking back over 1927, it has been a truly wonderful year and I want you to know that the brightest spots in it have been the kind thoughts and messages that my newspaper friends have sent me.

I've really grudged the minutes necessary to swallow the morning cup of coffee, because it kept me that much longer from reading the wonderful letters that are always waiting for me on my office desk and that I hope will continue to do so every day of 1928.

No matter where I go or no matter what I see, or what I read, or what I am doing, the thought is always with me, "Will this be helpful or interesting to other housewives?" and one of my big resolutions for the New Year will be to keep you all always in mind and to be always on the alert to learn more about the things that will help to oil the wheels of your domestic machine.

And now, since it is the season for good resolutions, let's all take over the ones we are going to make. Perhaps some one is saying, "Oh, but I am not going to make any resolutions this year because I know I won't keep them." Maybe that should be the first resolution—"Resolved, that I will make only a few resolutions and will do my very best to stick to these few."

I doubt if many of you have any great, big glaring faults that need to resolve to overcome, but perhaps when we take account of our shortcomings we find some of the irritating habits that are blots on the escutcheon of our good dispositions. Maybe it is some common nagging habit that just a little thought can overcome.

It is easy to get into the habit of saying "don't" to the little folks and "Do" to Dear Husband. I am sorry to have to admit that I know of two or three women who seem to think that with their marriage vows "love, honor and cherish" went a license for them to rule and judge, heckle and boss mercilessly and unsparingly henceforth and forever more.

Real affection is expressed by GIVING, not possessing and fully—and that is a rule that works both ways—for both husbands and wives.

Have you perhaps got a aggravating fault that possibly grates on the nerves and sets of your friends until they could cheerfully assassinate you for it? I know of one quite amiable little woman who has learned to her husband's chagrin that of courting has thawed her spouse's heart every time he repeats his offense, and that is very often.

Maybe husband is equally aggravated by your humming over the dishpan, especially if it is out of tune and he proves it on the nearest piece of nerving after a hard day at the office. Just a little repeating of these lines will accomplish so much to promote domestic harmony.

If your home is blessed with children, let some of your resolutions center around them. Through personal experience long ago I proved the value of positive rather than negative statements and instructions in dealing with little folks. For instance, perhaps you are going to dash out to the grocer's and instead of saying, "Don't you dare touch my sewing machine," you say, "Mother is going to the grocer's and she is leaving Elizabeth in charge of the household sewing machine."

Your parting admonition, "Now be sure not to put one of those beans in your ear, darling," brings rich fruit if the thought that otherwise might never have entered it, and you sooner than the door is closed behind me proudly report that the beans are in the pantry.

In the midst of these green-eyed childhood memories comes around a great big "don't" which could and should well mean a cheerful "Do," and with far better results.

I don't believe that the young "modern" should monopolize the home to the exclusion of Father's and Mother's rights, but neither do I believe that Mother should refuse them the little home parts and centers means that are of such value in letting you see the kind of friends who are your children's associates. You don't think it is any trouble to entertain in your home the evening guests, and I am sure you will find that frequent little gatherings for the young folks are an even better investment.

I do want to wish you all a Happy New Year and want you to know that the friendship of each and every one of you is very, very precious to me.

Faithfully yours,
MARTHA LEE.

WASHINGTON—I like my work demonstrating vacuum cleaners very much. I have enjoyed many conversations that otherwise I would not have enjoyed.

Today I had no sooner scattered the lint over the carpet than I was interrupted by a delegation of club women who came in to give me the Chautauqua salute.

I provided the "girls" with chairs and gave them a short lecture, interesting and instructive, and then did a few card tricks. I invited questions on any subject at all, which was a new and novel feature, thoroughly enjoyed.

One lady asked—

"Mr. B., who happens to be my husband, is charged with 'driving while intoxicated'—what will the verdict be?"

The little woman almost broke my heart with her sniffling. So I explained that a verdict of "not Guilty" would be upheld by the Supreme Court, inasmuch as the defendant was too drunk to know what he was doing.

After that I danced with each of the ladies, thus completing one of the happiest afternoons of my political life.

The first dance of the season was scheduled for last Wednesday. Several phoned him to say the weather was too severe for such a social event, but Ed replied: 'On with the dance,' declaring: 'If the attendance is too small to meet the expense, I will pay the deficit.' Only Mr. and Mrs. Patterson and the orchestra responded to the call."

By JOHN P. MEDBURY

TONIGHT is New Year's eve and millions of people all over the country are starting to unbutton their flasks.

THEY want to beGIN the new year right.

ONE fellow says he's going down town prepared. He expects to see 1928 come in three or four times.

HE'S taking his wife with him. Somebody has to carry the aspirin tablets.

HE'S going to drink and let her have the headaches.

HICCUP water is expensive this year. New York bootleggers are getting $9 a quart f. o. b. Statue of Liberty.

BUT it's good stuff. There isn't an argument in a gallon.

YOU can take a drink in the morning and wake up the same day.

MOST people aren't fussy about the time. They're tickled to death if they can wake up at all.

CAFES are charging high prices. It costs $3 an hour to lie under a table.

ONE man says he's going to wear full dress so that he'll be all ready for the undertaker in the morning.

THIS is apt to be his last party. On January 3, the auditors start going over his books.

HE'S been quite a rounder, and now the government will probably take him out of circulation for a few years.

THE shock will break his tailor's heart. He's too stout to wear stripes.

THOUSANDS of people are going to Montreal for New Year's eve. They live in America and drink in Canada.

THEIR hearts are with Uncle Sam, but their throats are with King George.

PEOPLE all over the country ought to enjoy themselves tonight. They should eat, drink and be merry, for tomorrow we may have prohibition.

Glorifying Menial Tasks

By L. LAMAR MATTHEWS.

WHILE Mrs. Manning was waiting in the dentist's office she picked up a magazine from the table and casually turned the pages. It wasn't the sort of magazine that interested her, especially, for she was a very busy woman and somehow she had lost sight of the subjects that appeal keenly to homeloving women.

When she went to business every morning she left instructions with her maid of all work, and that was the extent of her domestic activities.

Because the maid was an efficient one, the house was kept fairly clean and the meals were good enough. So there was really no reason why Mrs. Manning should bother about her housekeeping.

The thing that was worrying her was the conduct of her two young daughters—ten-year-old Doris and twelve-year-old Kathryn.

They were careless, indolent, quarrelsome, restless and discontented.

"I'll buy this magazine and take it home for my girls to read," she said. And so she did.

But neither Kathryn nor Doris read the article that she pointed out. What interested them were the gorgeous illustrations that advertised various food products and home beautifiers.

"Isn't that lovely?" exclaimed Kathryn as she gazed in admiration upon a highly decorative bit of home furnishing advertising.

"But look at this!" cried Doris, devouring with her eyes a delicious pastry display.

The mother watched the mischief as they turned the pages. She saw the glow of the good housekeeper reflected in their young faces. She knew without being told that they were longing to take part in the housekeeping activities that the colored pictures suggested.

She took advantage of the situation while their ardor was free and their enthusiasm was mounting.

"How would you like to plan the dinner for tomorrow evening, Kathryn?" she asked.

"Could I have anything I wanted to buy?"

"Yes, anything in reason," was the answer.

"Why I have a beautiful salad with lettuce around the edges, and a dessert with whipped cream and nuts on top!"

"Yes. And you may choose the sort of meat you wish and select two vegetables that you like, and have them all cooked just exactly to suit yourself. And, if you wish, I'll let Minnie to let you stay in the kitchen and help cook."

"Well, what can I do?" complained Doris.

"You may plan the dinner for the next day and have whatever you choose," smiled the mother.

The first few dinners were extravagant affairs. Then the mother suggested easy ways of kitchen economy. She also brought home information about food that supplies the right proportion of fats and carbohydrates and mineral salts.

Those little girls—like most little girls—had an urge for domestic affairs. No girl enjoys menial tasks at home, but, if she is allowed to plan, she wants to help execute her plans. If you can contrive a little glorification of household tasks your daughter won't mind the work.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By HELEN ROWLAND

WHERE did men inherit the idea that women love a caveman? Where did they get the notion that women love to be mauled, brow-beaten, kidded and swept off their feet?

• • •

Women love the kind of man who can mix a little soul and sentiment with his passion, and a little art and grace with his love-making.

• • •

Women want a man who knows that love is at least four-fifths psychological and only one-fifth physical—and that sex-appeal is merely incidental.

• • •

Women want a man who is tender, gentle, subtle—who can love with his mind, express it with his eyes, and say it with WORDS!

Women want a man who appeals to the imagination; whom they can visualize in the role of Lindbergh, the hero of their favorite novel, or the late Valentino; a man whom they can idealize and dramatize!

Women like a man who can talk about something interesting, besides himself; and whose vocabulary consists of more than three scintillating remarks — "Yeah?" "Izzat so?" and "Be good to me, Sweetie."

• • •

Women want a man with a finer sense of the beautiful; who pretends to have a few illusions about women; and who at least puts up a bluff at a mild interest in something besides petting, drinking, jazz and golf.

Women want love, beauty and romance above all things else in the world! Yet women are turning men into monuments of stony indifference.

• • •

Women are making monsters of conceit out of nice, modest men; bores out of men who were born gentlemen, and bores out of all men!

• • •

Women are giving themselves away like premiums with every cup of tea, and flinging themselves at men's heads so violently, that the men have taken to flight—like the hunter on whom the stag has turned.

• • •

Women hold all the cards in their hands—yet they are giving men all the good breaks. They are making the love-game so EASY for men, that men are beginning to yawn at the thought of it.

• • •

Men are TIRED of women! Men are sick of being pursued. Men are weary of being kissed against their wills, pawed, and sex-appealed to!

• • •

Women may wake up, some day—but by that time they will find all the men FAST ASLEEP!

If the world's best tailor—made a suit from newspapers, how long would it wear? Tailoring is very important but it is the cloth that wears.

That is why the American Woolen Company has trade-marked its all-wool Serge, Cheviot, Unfinished Worsted and Merchants' Gray as well as a specially selected line of worsteds with neat stripes so that you can be sure to get cloth that will give you the most for your money.

Ask your clothier or tailor to show you the trade mark on the cloth.

GILBERT STAR OF--WHAT?

THIS IS LAST OF "LOVE" CONTEST PHOTOS

Name the film from which this scene was taken and figure out the name of the star playing opposite John Gilbert and you will have solved the last of the Gilbert puzzle pictures. The five answers must be in the mail before midnight Monday to be eligible for the prizes in the Gilbert contest.

Midnight next Monday is the "deadline" on the John Gilbert "Love" contest. And here is the fifth and last picture of the contest.

All you have to do is write down the name of the film from which this picture was taken and then figure out the name of the person with whom John Gilbert appears. He is appearing this week at Loew's State Theatre in "Love."

Today's picture completes your collection of five. When you have solved this one, put them all together and mail them. But, and this is important, they must be in the mail before 12 o'clock, midnight, on Monday, January 2.

With your solutions send a 15-word sentence on "Why I Like John Gilbert." This, with its appearance, style and construction, will count in determining awards to winners.

The winner of the contest will get $25. The other prizes are $15, $10 and two $5's. And then there are fifty pairs of tickets to Loew's State Theatre awaiting the next fifty best contestants.

Send in your complete list of answers, before midnight next Monday, to John Gilbert "Love" Contest Editor, Boston Evening American, No. 5 Winthrop square, Boston.

and at the great organ consoles in the State and Orpheum Theatres, whence will issue the regular house music, and special after-theatre programs.

TUNE IN TUESDAY EVENING.

In addition, special programs will be broadcast by artists playing at the two theatres from the studio already in operation at the State Theatre.

The inauguration of the Boston Evening American studio, which will be WLOE's main studio and headquarters, located in the New England Press Building at Winthrop square, will take on a formal character during the evening hours on Tuesday, when State and city officials, heads of the various civic organizations, executives of the Hearst newspapers, the Loew Theatres, and the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer chain of radio stations will speak words of greeting to the New England radio public through the microphone.

Governor Fuller has expressed his intention to be present and make a brief address. It is expected that Mayor Nichols will extend the greetings of the City of Boston and former Mayor Andrew J. Peters will speak on behalf of the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

NOTED TALENT.

A long and varied program of music will punctuate the speeches. The entire proceedings will be directed by Joe Teya as master of ceremonies.

Among the artists appearing during the evening between 6 o'clock and midnight will be Mme. Marie di Pesa, prominent Boston soprano; Carmela Ippolitto, talented violinist; the "Phantom and Shadow," the Jordan trio; Black and White entertainers; Harold Benfield, xylophonist; artists of Loew's Variety Hour; John Craig; the Belmont four, and the Dresser-Williams concert trio.

It Is Vital That U. S. People Be Given All the Real Facts

As concerns the Western Hemisphere, American foreign policy may be said to revolve about the Monroe Doctrine. The protection of the Panama Canal is a foremost feature of the nation's naval program.

Because of these considerations, threats against American interests in Central America are threats against the nation's most vital concerns.

Absolute security for the canal is necessary if our navy is to be adequate protection for both Atlantic and Pacific Coasts.

This has been recognized from the day when construction of the Panama Canal began. Accordingly, about the time the canal was completed, the United States bought from Denmark the Virgin Islands because of their importance as defenses to the canal. About the same time, we got from the Republic of Nicaragua, by treaty, the right to build a canal across that country from Atlantic to Pacific via the San Juan River and Lake Nicaragua.

At that time nobody imagined the Nicaragua Canal would be necessary in any near future, as Panama would easily handle the traffic. But already business at Panama is so heavy that construction at Nicaragua is seriously discussed. So the Nicaraguan rights, which were bought for $3,000,000 primarily to keep them from going to any other power, already have become highly important.

Both the protection of Panama and the security of our rights in Nicaragua require maintenance of orderly, stable and well disposed governments throughout Central America. This has therefore become a fundamental American policy in the Caribbean. And just as it has become increasingly important to the United States, it has been increasingly opposed by Mexico.

In the 1914 treaty with Nicaragua, both that country and the United States recognized their common interest in protecting Panama. That was declared one purpose of the treaty, which in Article 2 says:

ARTICLE 2—To enable the United States to protect the Panama Canal and the proprietary rights granted to the United States by the foregoing article (that is, right to construct a Nicaragua Canal), and also to enable the United States to take any necessary measures to the end contemplated herein, Nicaragua hereby leases for ninety-nine years to the United States the islands in the Caribbean Sea known as Great Corn Island and Little Corn Island; and Nicaragua grants to the United States for ninety-nine years the right to establish, operate and maintain a naval base at such place on the territory of Nicaragua bordering upon the Gulf of Fonseca as the United States may select.

Thus the United States has rights to build a canal across Nicaragua, and to establish naval bases at the Corn Islands in the Caribbean and at the Gulf Fonseca, in the Pacific. Should Mexican plottings in Gautemala and Nicaragua result in establishing a Central American regime hostile to the United States, all these rights would be instantly menaced.

In the event of war between the United States and any important power, an unfriendly Mexican regime would be in sympathy if not alliance with the enemies of the United States. Such was Mexico's attitude during the World War. Such unquestionably would be the attitude of any Government of Mexico guided by the policies of the present Calles Government.

The consequences of such a situation are obvious. With our fleet divided, or perhaps on the wrong side of the country at the opening of war, a Mexico-Central America league against the United States might destroy the Canal before we could possibly get forces on the ground to protect it. A supreme disaster to this country would be brought in sight.

Suggestion of such danger is not vain imagining. Ever since Panama opened Mexico has intrigued to bring about such a situation. To the utmost that it dared, the Carranza Government sided with Germany, because of hatred toward the United States. The danger had been foreseen by our Government, and frankly recognized in the treaty with Nicaragua.

This whole situation was regarded by President Coolidge as so critically important that he discussed it in a lengthy special message to Congress within the present year. Since that message conditions have become even more threatening. The Calles Government, with this anti-American policy always in mind, has been fixing its grip on Mexico through measures drastic without precedent even in that country. Whatever strengthens Calles in Mexico, inevitably weakens the United States in the Canal area.

The time has come when the people of the United States must be permitted to know the whole truth. The one way to place the full truth before them is for the Senate now, without fear or hesitation, to lay bare the complete facts about the activities and purposes of the present regime in Mexico.

Who's Afraid? Open the Door to the Young Gentleman

Satisfied that the New Year is going to be fully as prosperous as the old one or any of its predecessors, the Boston Evening American expresses the fervent hope that everyone in New England will share in the distribution of Plenty.

The year which is about to end has been one of the most successful in the history of this newspaper, a record for which we desire to thank every reader.

With your continued confidence and support, which we shall try hard to merit, we are sure the next twelve months will do even better by us.

Our advice to everyone who does not see that New England is conquering her difficulties is to get out and SEE New England. As for the community we know as Greater Boston the figures prove her right to fourth place among the cities of America and if there is a more alive or more aggressive town between the oceans we cannot find it upon the map.

To you, dear reader, and to every member of your family, good health, a long life and all the prosperity you can stand!

No one hereabout is even a mite afraid of the Young Stranger who is about to pull the doorbell. Draw a chair up to the fire and invite him in!

NEVER GIVE UP, NEW YEAR'S SLOGAN

By DR. FRANK CRANE

NEW YEAR'S DAY is a bugle call to the down-hearted. Try again!

It is never too late to make another attempt.

"While there's life there's hope." It is the slogan of the Salvation Army, "A man may be down but he is never out."

It is characteristic of the highest spirit of man that he can never be conquered. He can still fight with his back to the wall and go down struggling manfully.

New Year's Day says to us all, never to give up.

The best thing about a man is the indomitable spirit of man which has been shown in the way that the blind or the deaf or the halt somehow manage to make a success with the remnants of the faculties of life left to them.

And how much these brave spirits who do so much with so little rebuke us, who, after all, have all our faculties.

Courage is the primal virtue. It comes before everything else. There have been discovered tribes who do not know even so much as the name of some of the boasted virtues of our civilization, but there never has been found a race of men in the past or present that does not recognize courage.

David was not a man of impeccable morals, but he was not afraid, and this virtue atoned for his many flaws.

Among the ancient Greeks, figures like Hercules and Perseus were acclaimed, because in spite of all their shortcomings they were brave men.

We are put into this strange world with all sorts of enemies about us. Death and disaster lurk behind every tree and every corner. The least we can do is be unafraid.

The old lines of William Ernest Henley are good for us all to repeat upon New Year's Day:

Out of the night that covers me,
Black as the pit from pole to pole,
I thank what gods may be
For my unconquerable soul.
In the fell clutch of circumstance
I have not winced nor cried aloud,
Beneath the bludgeonings of chance
My head is bloody but unbowed.
It matters not how strait the gate,
How charged with punishments the scroll,
I am the master of my fate,
I am the captain of my soul.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

TRUE all blame or rep. of is not cruelly meant, though men flinch at the weight of a word, and the critic may speak with a kindly intent when his speech is as sharp as a sword. There is tonic, sometimes, in the turn of a phrase that can rouse men from dangerous spells, and can set their steps back into purposeful ways by the effort its candor compels. But the best aid of all that a toiler can find from day's dawn till the setting of sun comes when some one cries out, in a voice clear and kind, just this message: "Well done, friend well done!" How it lightens the way and it brightens the day, how it helps in the race to be run, when over the tumult one hears a voice say: "Well done, friend, your task is well done!"

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

WINTER comes beautifully in California.

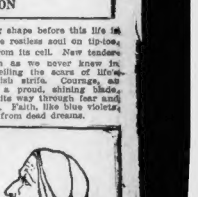
The days grow short. The peach trees flame. Persimmons burn behind their thinning leaves and pomegranates split their scarlet hearts. The grape vines smolder darkly, copper and maroon. The air is fruity, with an earthy edge. The golden light flows slowly, thickly, near the ground.

One day, things are so still you see a hundred miles. The hills and valleys float within an amber glaze. Toward evening there's a restless tension in the air—the dry soil quickens—That night the first rain comes and, in the morning, wind. Leaves fall in flurries—trees stand naked, etched against a sky of stinging blue. You feel the Summer crumble under foot. There is a pungent order of decay—the leaves are going back to whence they came.

But even as life loosens its fierce grip and gives its body back to mother earth, new life is rising through the rotting mold. Down every hillside—through each crack and chink—along the sidewalk—on the garden path—new grass is bursting in bright emerald veins. You see Fall's dimming glory through the sodden leaves. And violets break to purple where spring's roses sleep.

Winter or Spring—which is it? You can hardly tell. This strange, mid-passage loveliness was never classified. These flowers that blossom through the frost, this grass that leaps from out the dying sod—they have a beauty that is set apart from all the harvest that has gone before. They hold within their sap the wisdom of the year that's gone—their sweetness breathes the promise of the year to come.

Birth hand in hand with death—new life from old—new bodies bursting through the crumbling shell—I think our own old age should come like that, to you and me. The next life taking shape before this life is done. The restless soul on tip-toe, peering from its cell. New tenderness, such as we never knew in Spring, veiling the scars of life's long, selfish strife. Courage, at last, like a proud, shining blade, thrusting its way through fear and sordidness. Faith, like blue violets, springing from dead dreams.



I think old age should come like that to you and me—

Only, we fight so bitterly, as nature never fights.

We cringe a cravenly from every falling leaf—resent lost beauty—view our scars with rage—let cynicism, like a frost nip each faint hope—

If we would yield ourselves to life, facing our passing seasons without grief or fear or hate, I think our Spring and Winter would come hand in hand. And, as the body died, we'd see the Soul thrusting its radiance through the old, worn shell. And so with Death find Birth—and grow on gladly to another year.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

You shall never take her without her answer, unless you take her without her tongue.—Proverb.

First, religious and moral principles; secondly, gentlemanly conduct; thirdly, intellectual ability.
—Thomas Arnold.

Nothing is more deceitful in appearance, than superstition, the authority of the god is used to cover crimes.—Livy.

Reputation, reputation, reputation! I have lost my reputation! I have lost the immortal part of myself, and what remains is bestial.
